NEW MAYOR WANTS CLEAR OFFICE TITLE

In Statement to Boston American Declares His Plurality Will Be Increased on Revision of Figures—Storrow Papers Are Prepared.

Mayor-elect John F. Fitzgerald to-day in a statement made to the BOSTON AMERICAN, declared that he was in favor of a recount of the mayoralty vote by which he was elected over James J. Storrow by 1,416 votes.

The next Mayor says that he does not want to go into office with a shadow on his title to the place. A recount will increase his plurality, he says.

He declares he is going to give Boston the best administration the city ever had. He says he was elected because he and his forces outgeneraled the Storrow people.

Mr. Storrow and the Citizens' Municipal League to-day obtained papers for a recount of the mayoralty vote and began their circulation through the various wards of the city. Fifty signatures in each ward are required. The blank papers were obtained by William C. Prue, secretary of the league.

Expects No Trouble.

Clad in the conventional black frock coat, striped trousers and a red four-in-hand that may have lent some of the color to his cheeks, John F. Fitzgerald talked with a reporter in the library of his Welles avenue home. Floating through the halls came sounds of preparation for the departure of his daughter Rose for New York, where she is to attend a finishing school.

"I don't know what I can tell you," said the former Mayor and Mayor-elect. "The fights all over. What is there to say?"

Suddenly he proceeded to say things and new topics seemed to follow each other as soon as he had finished discussing one.

"I am satisfied," he said, "that I am going to give the city of Boston the best administration it has ever had. I anticipate no trouble of an overt during my administration. I believe that the council and the new charter will work with me and not against me for the best interests of the whole city. If they do, the welfare of the city and of the citizens' interests is assured.

Friendly With Council.

"I anticipate no friction with the members of the new City Council. Why? Mainly because I know every one of them, not only personally, but intimately. I am on excellent terms of friendship with them all. There's a point in connection with this feature that you should not forget. While I was Mayor before there were so-called good Government members of the Board of Aldermen and the Common Council whose main purpose seemed to be to block every move of mine.

"Perhaps they did so with a conviction, honest in their minds, that every move of the Fitzgerald administration was a bad move and one that ought to be impeded. I believe that they were dead wrong. It said that were instructed to make trouble for me. They hampered my appropriations, tried to erect stone walls against the passage of my measures, did other things too numerous to mention. I think they are convinced now that they harmed the city and impeded its development more than they harmed me.

"If the members of the new City Council follow the dictates of their own conscience and discard the pettiness of false reformers, Boston will flourish and make long strides towards becoming the big city of the country in the next four years.

Will Also Ask Recount.

"Doubt about the certainty of my election? Not a bit of it. A recount will increase my plurality. Our side will ask for a recount. We will not give any one a chance to say hereafter that I would have been counted out if a recount had been held. We will petition for a recount.

"You want to watch out, too, for the humor of 'Grand.' If there is one thing that deserves to be developed it is the action of individuals who adopt all manner of dishonorable methods to procure their ends, and then cry 'fraud' when they are defeated.

"There is one situation now that seems to me to be undesirable. The time for filing petitions for any legislation at the State adjourns before the new Mayor who is to be elected, therefore, the petitions to Mayor, within the prescribed limit. Late petitions may be admitted by special leave, but the guardian of the Rules Committee of the Legislature is a bit more trying than the slander thing of a petition to the mayor.

Hibbard Will Co-operate.

"I might say, in this connection, that Mayor Hibbard, too, has noted this point, and this morning sent me a message offering to co-operate with me, asked by the Corporation Counsel, in the framing and filing of bills to advance the welfare of Boston. I'd like to take this opportunity to thank him cordially for his kind offer.

"What elected me? Why, the voters' ballots, of course. You mean what feature of my campaign it most helped me? I'll say frankly that I don't. It was my outgeneraling the other side from start to finish in the campaign. Storrow's no doubt now but that our forces were more 'effective' than theirs. I think the 'outgeneraling' of the era last Friday night clinched my victory. If I had made a mistake in the Friday night meeting I'd have been defeated without a doubt.

"The Storrow rally in Tremont Temple last Thursday night gave the element which likes to flop to the man who looks a winner confidence to show its ability to win. If we had set things rest until Saturday night the crowd would have been for Hale and not for the tide. We got it it Friday night.

"I left every ward in the city, and the side around to the Saturday night meetings. Personal Temple and Hale were flowing meetings and clinched the victory. People have told me, too, that my speeches on of the campaign, and my replies, starting to Storrow's charges, were a big help for my candidacy.

Going Away for a Rest.

"I may slide away soon for a rest. I think I need it. I'll keep in touch with Boston, however, and spend most of my rest time studying up the reports of various commissions which I will be supported to the next Legislature, and determining to Storrow's charges. Oh, no rest for me. They hamper me, too, that my sympathies are with the people

NEXT MAYOR'S WIFE HAPPIEST WOMAN IN CITY

WIFE OF MAYOR-ELECT SAYS BOSTON NOW WILL KNOW TRUE FITZGERALD

By Mrs. John F. Fitzgerald

"I am very happy at the result of the election. The people will now have a chance to judge the true Mayor Fitzgerald. I knew all along that the Finance Commission was not treating him fairly. Now the people will have the opportunity of knowing my husband, and I am sure when they come to know him they will find that the Mayor-elect is not the man he has been pictured in advertisements. They will now have the chance to know the man as I know him, and they will not regret their choice."

The happiest woman in Boston is Mrs. John F. Fitzgerald. All through the long, hard struggle of the best part of ten weeks, during which time her husband has had to devote all his time to the canvass, Mrs. Fitzgerald has constantly hoped for success.

And it was the knowledge of what she had gone through that sent the next Mayor home to her and the family just as soon as he was assured of election.

He arrived home shortly after 6 o'clock and remained an hour. All through the evening hours, when the result of the returns looked at times to be doubtful, the next Mayor did not forget the little woman waiting on the other end of the 'phone tense with anxiety as to the final outcome.

Every once in a while Mr. Fitzgerald, surrounded by his lieutenants, counting the returns, would call out: "Please call up Mrs. Fitzgerald and tell her it is all right." Once or twice, when the result was very much in doubt, it is recorded that he allowed the returns to be a little colored in his favor.

Then the Misses Fitzgerald aided their mother in keeping track of the husband and father and in getting the earliest returns. When the final result was reduced to a certainty, Mrs. Fitzgerald and her daughters and sons had a little private ratification meeting.

Then when election had been assured Mrs. Fitzgerald had hardly time to say more than a few wifely words when it was off to bed for the next Mayor, to rest up for the reception of the evening.

NEW ECZEMA REMEDY

Stops Itching at Once.

The new remedy Cuduni has astonished the medical world. Many cures of eczema and other distressing skin diseases are reported, and the remarkable feature is the promptness in the quickness of the cure. Eczema is not a blood disease, but a skin affection and cannot be cured by internal medicines. External treatment is absolutely necessary. Since the introduction of Cuduni eczema is now recognized as a curable disease, and that tormenting affliction has been robbed of its terrors. Cuduni stops the itch at once and begins the healing process with the first application. It destroys disease germs, allays inflammation and is soothing and healing to the skin. From the moment it is applied to any skin trouble immediate relief is felt. It is for pimples, blotches, hives, tetter, itch, acne, herpes, scaly skin, psoriasis, rash, chafings, eruptions, sores, scurvy, scabs, blackheads, itching piles, etc. Trial box 10c.; large box 25c.; all druggists.

Countess Szechenyi Wins New Laurels.

BUDAPEST—The parish priest of Ormezo, where Count Laszlo Szechenyi's estate is situated, determined to offer to the lord and lady of the manor a little surprise. He taught the Slovak village children to act a Christmas play, "The Innocents," in Hungarian. All the best society of the neighborhood was invited to see the play. Countess Laszlo Szechenyi complimented the worthy priest on having accomplished a national mission in teaching the Slovak children to act. The Magyar press is unanimous in favorably commenting on the patriotism of the Countess, who has thus won new laurels in her adopted country.

Urges the Sword for Germany.

BERLIN—Court Chaplain Dr. Schmidt has just preached a bellicose gospel to the German Students' Union at their annual festival here. He said among other things: "Unfortunately large numbers of our own people do not know what our army and fleet are and what we gain by them. A generation of peace has deprived us of actual knowledge of them. It is our duty to review it. We thank the Kaiser for providing us with a fleet. A studious youth who does not fulfil the task of being a German Christian and soldierly is contemptible. The German sword is Germany's power."

Baroness Vaughan's Appeal.

PARIS—In the appeal of the Baroness Vaughan from that part of the decision of December 22, in which the court ordered an inventory of her property at Ballincourt, decision was reserved for one week. In the course of his pleading the attorney for the Baroness severely criticised the action of Princess Louise in tying up the appellant's property in Belgium and France, pointing out that her sisters Clementine and Stephanie had refused to join in the undignified proceeding of "discussing the extent of their father's liberality toward the Baroness."

France's War on the Schools.

PARIS—The government has decided upon the following measures to meet the war proclaimed by the episcopate against the public schools: First, modification of the bill recently introduced to enable the government to clothe the public authorities with full power to meet the situation at every point. Second, the submission of a bill introducing State control in Catholic or so-called private schools. Third, the substitution of the State as the defendant for teachers in suits brought against them by Catholic parents' associations.

20 Square Miles of Soda.

LONDON—Engineer Shelford, who has been surveying the proposed railroad which will join the Uganda Railway in Africa with Lake Magadi, describes the remarkable features of the lake. It lies at the bottom of a valley 2,000 feet deep and about at a distance like an ordinary sheet of water, but the water is only a few inches deep above a hard surface like pink marble. This is actually an immense deposit of soda covering twenty square miles.

Darkness Threatens Paris.

PARIS—Another electricians' strike is threatened, owing to the dismissal of "King" Patault, secretary of the Electricians' Union. The electricians have demanded Patault's reinstatement. They assert that they have assurances from the army electricians that the latter will refuse to replace the strikers in the event that a strike is declared.

Rothschild Apologizes.

LONDON—Among the minor incidents of the election campaign David Lloyd-George, Chancellor of the Exchequer, has drawn a handsome apology from Lord Rothschild for wrongfully attributing to the Chancellor the declaration that there was likelihood of Great Britain having to repatriate the Jews.

Big Prizes of Aeronauts.

"PONY EXPRESS" ISSUE IN MALDEN

The "pony express" license question has once more come before the Malden Board of Aldermen, and applications have been filed on the table often, long discussed. When the board considered the applications last night Aldermen Stimpson said that it had decided after a public hearing given in April last not to grant any, and he maintained that the time limit of this decision does not expire until May 1. He said he favored granting fifteen or sixteen licenses instead of the thirty or more which used to be issued. A petition from a Boston man for permission to establish in Malden a distillery to make brandy out of fruit was referred to the committee on licenses.

SURPRISES SHOWN BY THE FIGURES

ing asked about the more than 4,000 signers of Taylor's papers.

The friends of Mr. Storrow claimed today that if Hibbard had not been in the fight Storrow would have won. This conclusion is questioned in other circles, where it was said that had he remained out of the fight the result would have been the same.

The argument was made before the election that the getting out of the large stay-at-home vote would all be in favor of Storrow, but this did not prove true. Fitzgerald got his share of these.

One of the experts at figures to-day declared that he had gone over the returns carefully and that Fitzgerald received about 75 per cent. of the enrolled Democratic vote. The rest came from Republicans and Independents. It was claimed that practically all of the Coulthurst vote of two years ago went to Fitzgerald.

The Republicans, according to the same authority, voted for Storrow almost solidly. It was figured that he received 80 per cent. of the enrolled Republicans in Boston. In Wards 8 and 9 Storrow received strong support from The Democrats.

The Fitzgerald vote in Ward 8, presided over by that political wizard, Martin Lomasney, did not come up to Martin's expectation, although he gave the next Mayor a plurality of 800.

Lomasney Had Hard Fight.

Martin did a great deal of work in this campaign—in fact he was put on his mettle as he has seldom been in the past. The fight of the Good Government Association has centered on Ward 8, and the election Commissioners prevented some gentlemen from voting there who had fully made up their minds to do so.

Another very important fact that should be taken into consideration this year in the Ward 8 fight was that the Jews of the Ward 8 Democratic Ward 9 mostly did Storrow's generosity, and they did not forget it when they went to the polls. Lomasney has also fought the battle of his life when he tried to lead them into line for Fitzgerald when Storrow was in the field. The opponent of Fitzgerald had been any other man than Storrow, Martin would have given the next Mayor a bigger plurality.

On being asked why Mayor Hibbard didn't get a larger vote, a political expert said to-day:

"He didn't run. Hibbard is surrounded by a bunch of political trimmers. They wanted Fitz to win and for that reason they encouraged the Mayor to keep in the fight. Hibbard himself was sincere in his candidacy from the start."

Great Vote in Ward 20.

The vote in Ward 20 was phenomenally large. More than 9,500 ballots were voted in this ward. That was 1,100 more than two years ago. In that ward Fitzgerald and Storrow split the Coulthurst vote. Fitzgerald increased his vote over two years ago by 1,200 votes, while Hibbard got 1,100 more than Fitzgerald at that time. The silent vote came out in this ward and Fitzgerald and Storrow both profited.

The reason for Fitzgerald winning in view of his former defeat and his controversies with the Finance Commission can be found in a great deal of discussion to-day. There were several elements that contributed to his success.

Many of Fitzgerald's friends declare that they were aided by the treatment of Fitzgerald by the Finance Commission. They feel that many persons believed that the next Mayor had not been treated fairly—that the commission really "ribbed it in" on Fitzgerald.

This caused a great deal of sentiment and sympathy for the candidate, when they regarded him as the under dog in the fight. In certain sections of the city the fight was so warm that neighbors were estranged by their fidelity to their respective candidates. Many persons, in the North End and Charlestown who had hitherto been the best of friends do not speak now as a result of the different sets of opinion on this election.

The question of the expenditure of money in the campaign was another factor in the fight. It was declared to-day that Fitzgerald had plenty of money with which to run his campaign, and that he was willing to spend it generously, but that his friends held him back, declaring that he would make more votes by appearing as a poor candidate in contrast to Storrow.

The Fitzgerald fund, however, was not kept from circulation to the end of the campaign. In fact it was the contributing cause in the turn of the tide toward Fitzgerald on Monday, according to experts. When thousands of dollars were bet on the result, the Storrow men being swamped.

That is one of Richard Croker's old tricks, and it has won in many an election, just as many people believe. It won in this election—the influence of a certain amount of the vote by the betting.

Never before in a political contest in Boston has there been so much money wagered and never in any local sporting event. It was said to-day that probably $700,000 changed hands. Many of the bets were paid to-day. One of the heaviest losers, it is reported, was Big Bill Kelliher, who dropped $22,000.

The Fitzgerald men all looked like ready money to-day, as most of the active supporters of the next Mayor had plenty of money to bet and they got it placed.

Recall Proviso a Farce.

Fitzgerald goes into office on February 7, and the term is four years. There is a recall feature to Plan 2, but most every body who has given it any consideration agrees that it probably will never "recall" anybody.

Should the people of the city be dissatisfied with Fitzgerald during the next two years new city election may be ordered in January, 1912. But to get this election it takes the vote of a MAJORITY OF THE REGISTERED VOTERS OF THE CITY, 56,000 votes, according to the present basis.

It would be a pretty hard thing to get 56,000 people in Boston to try to recall Fitzgerald, it is admitted on all sides. So long as the Legislature does not take charge of Boston, as it has been threatened it likely to do at almost any time now, Fitzgerald's hot will remain on the next 47 City Hall for four years.

The Citizens' Municipal League scored in the City Council, if it did get rapped on the head of the head, electing seven out of the nine successful candidates. The seven men are Coffey, Gillis, Hall, Kenny, Ballantyne, Brand and McBridge.

Curley and Buckley of the Curley-Tim Sullivan ticket were only saved in final combination to get through. Curley was the first man on the ticket, which helped him. Buckley beat Lane as the ninth man in the combination vote by only 143 votes, and it is likely that there will be a recount.

WHY YOUR HANDS SHOULD BE CLEAN—The wonderful importance of this can be scientifically explained in the SUNDAY AMERICAN.

WOMAN AGAIN CALLS RUSSELL CLAIMANT 'SON'

Mrs. Sarah Rixeau, mother of James Delbert Rixeau, again declared on the witness stand to-day that Daniel Blake Russell is her son and said that he ought to be ashamed of himself for denying that she was his parent. Mr. Russell is fighting for one-half of the estate, valued at $500,000, now held by William C. Russell of Melrose, whom Daniel Blake Russell says is his brothers.

During the cross-examination by Attorney Simpson to-day Mrs. Rixeau said: "That man is my son. He can deny it if he wishes, but I shall not. I only wish I could see William C. Russell and tell him that this man here is an imposter, that his name is not Daniel Blake Russell, but James Delbert Rixeau. Just look at him over there." He ought to be ashamed of himself to deny his poor mother, who brought him up."

Mrs. Rixeau said that, as far as she knew, there was only one opinion about this man's identity; that was that he is James Rixeau. Questioned by Attorney Simpson she said:

Q.—Who told you this? A.—We had talked this over together.

Q.—Did you know that some people have already said that this man was not James Rixeau? A.—No. I understood that everybody said his name was James Rixeau.

Mrs. Edward Rixeau, wife of Edward Rixeau, who has already said that the claimant is his brother, was the next witness. She identified one of the letters as having been received by her husband in Bridger Falls, New York. Mrs. Rixeau said she could not read, but she thought that the letter was the same because there was a crease spot on one of the pages.

GRAVES SEES NEW HOPE FOR WORLD PEACE

By JOHN TEMPLE GRAVES.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—At the recent diamond peace jubilee of Methodist Episcopal missions of Africa, President Taft uttered impressive and significant words.

"We are a great power in the world, and we may be, and I hope we are a great power for usefulness, a great power for the spread of Christian civilization and we must be so if we would justify our success and vindicate our right to enter the opportunities that has given us in this fair, broad land of wealth and comfort and luxury and education and making ourself what we are to think we are, the foremost people of the world.

"There are those who would read the last words of Washington in his farewell message as an indication that we ought to keep within the seas and not look beyond, but he was addressing thirteen states that had much to do before they could make themselves a great nation and that might avoid entangling alliances, or any foreign interference or any foreign troubles, while they were making themselves a nation. But now we are a nation with tremendous power and wealth and guiless we see that for the benefit of our international neighbor and for the benefit of all neighbors of ours for the world is very small in which we that power and that wealth we are failing to discharge the duties we ought to feel as members of the international community."

Mighty Mission of Peace.

The first President of the United States spoke more than a century ago according to the wisdom of the age. The President of today speaks to the broader light of an infinitely larger and more responsible time interpreting more fully and realizing the views of his immortal predecessor.

The words of President Taft mark the real inaugural of the great peace movement which America is leading for the world.

It lifts the nation above the limitations of the past and launches the United States upon a mighty mission of peace and good will to men. Neither the State Department nor the executive feel anything but confidence as to the ultimate outcome of the overtures which have been sent from Washington to the nations.

Cannot be Stayed.

The spirit of the age is behind them, the spirit of all nations is beneath them, and the movement, once started from so illustrious a source, cannot be stayed. The President has sounded forth the peace eagles which must never know restraint.

If the patriotism of the past has been hallowed upon the sentiment, "Our country as against every other country," the larger patriotism of the future must say, "Our country as with every other country," with unlimited devotion to our own great land, but, with a full recognition of the rights and harmless of our fellow men, we must with loftier loyalty and more heroic effort contribute such qualities of brain and soul to our country, that it may lead the world in the nobility of its people, in its sense of universal justice and in its more majestic conception of government.

Past patriotism has expressed itself in a wild race for power and in increasing armaments until 70 per cent. of the amount intrusted through taxation by the people to government has been spent in equipment for slaughter. It is our mission now to educate the world to the conception of world patriotism, which will save the colossal treasure to peace and to the beneficent children of peace.

This is the spirit in which the White House and the departments have assumed the initiative in the world's peace movement.

Peace Surely Coming.

This is spirit in which the press and the people should meet and sustain it.

And with the government, the press and the people united to this pacific and shining crusade, the time is inevitably and swiftly coming.

'REBELS' PLAN COUNTRY-WIDE CANNON FIGHT

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—In secret conference, the insurgents to-day laid their plans to take up the gauntlet thrown down by Speaker Cannon when he declared emphatically: "Once and for all, I am not thinking of resigning, and will not resign."

The establishment of a national insurgent headquarters, from which the fight against Cannon and the Aldrich forces in the Senate and the individual struggles of the "rebels" for re-election will be conducted, is under consideration.

Another crisis will be reached at the caucus called for tonight if the regulars attempt any action that will accentuate the situation, such as the passage of a resolution to bind every man present to support the organization on all questions, any member refusing to be so regarded as an independent and not entitled to recognition as a Republican.

The radical Republicans have learned the value of "team work." Nevertheless, it was learned to-day that the insurgent plans are rapidly being whipped into shape for a whirlwind campaign in Senate, House and throughout the country.

The insurgents are taking all advantage of the fight which they predict President Taft had not O. K'd the statement to Speaker Cannon that Republican National Committeeman Murray Crane and Secretary Loeb began the fight on the insurgents, which was outlined in the form of a declaration of war on the insurgents, organization and policies, in order to convince the country that Mr. Taft had looked over the situation.

The decision of the Republicans while that all of the representatives must be on the same ground, and that no pairing will be done unless written request is made, which can be given only when the pairs is regarded by the Republicans. The Democrats have taken a similar action.

This means that there will be no averting a showdown vote, when roll calls come and that regulars, rebels and Democrats will all on the floor in force.

HOE NAME TO STAY ON PRINTING PRESSES

NEW YORK, Jan. 12.—The firm of Robert Hoe & Co. is to be reorganized on a basis which will insure the perpetuity of the business in the possession of the descendants of the late Robert Hoe, the third of that name to engage in the manufacture of printing presses.

Justice Ford in the supreme court has granted judicial approval to the plans of reorganization for the consolidation of the ten corporation of Robert Hoe & Co. will be $1,875,000, of which $1,250,000 is preferred stock and $2,925,000 common.

HAWAII'S EX-QUEEN NOW IN WASHINGTON

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—Former Queen Lilioukani of Hawaii, accompanied by a party of natives and friends, is here to-day to petition congress for a modification in the United States of the deeds of the island possessions, by securing immunization from the United States to Hawaii and to press her claims for damages which she alleges were taken from her without compensation when Hawaii was annexed.

DRESSMAKER WANTS MAIDEN NAME AGAIN

With her father dying at home, Mrs. Alice T. (Mass) Mahaffy of No 600 Cambridge street, Allston, appeared in the Suffolk County Divorce Court to-day and asked to be freed from her husband John, whom she charged with deserting her. When asked by Judge King if her father was in court as a witness, Mrs. Mahaffy said:

"No, he was brought home from the hospital to die, and that is why he is not here to testify for me."

"The only reason by mother is not here is because she is by my father's bedside taking care of him."

That Massachusetts Superior Court judges hesitate to grant to women securing divorces the use of their maiden names unless there is a good reason for doing so was the declaration of Judge King during the case.

"Why do you wish to resume your maiden name?" asked Judge King of Mrs. Mahaffy.

"Because I prefer it," replied Mrs. Mahaffy.

"Is there any other reason?" asked Judge King.

"Yes, for business reasons. I am in the dressmaking business at No. 600 Boylston street, and I would prefer to use my maiden name," declared the witness.

"Well, I will talk the matter over with your lawyer," said the judge.

Mrs. Mahaffy said that she was married on November 22, 1898, and that her husband left her May 1, 1903.

STOUGHTON WOMAN ASKS FOR DIVORCE

A suit for divorce was filed to-day with the clerk of the Superior Court by Mrs. Mabel E. Rogers of Stoughton against her husband, James K. P. Rogers of the same town. She charges cruel and abusive treatment. Mrs. Rogers says she was married on October 1, 1898. She and her husband live in Holbrook and Stoughton. She asks for the custody of her three children, Hazel, aged nine; Ruth, eight, and Dorothy, two. She asks also for alimony.

DRUG OVERCOMES CAR CONDUCTOR

Owen H. Owens of Dorchester, a Boston Elevated conductor, while suffering from a cold, accidentally took an overdose of morphine tablets. The drug made him so sick that when his car was at Massachusetts and Huntington avenues to-day he was overcome and had to be taken to the Massachusetts General Hospital.

SERVICE FOR CRITTENTON.

A memorial for the late Charles Nelson Crittenton, evangelist, philanthropist and founder of the National Florence Crittenton Mission, will be held at Tremont Temple at 3 P. M. on Sunday next. The Rev. Dr. A. Z. Conrad, Bishop Willard F. Mallalieu and other leading clergymen will be among the speakers.

FATHER ILL AS FAMILY OF TEN ARE IN HUNGER

How a sick man, his wife and eight young children lived on two quarts of milk and four eggs ever since last Friday was discovered by Sergeant Sullivan and Patrolman Wragg of Station 10. Today the big-hearted policemen of the Roxbury station are providing food for the famished family.

For a month Frank Millett of No. 71 Warwick street has been at death's door from pneumonia. His brave little wife, Bertha, was too proud to beg or even hint to Dr. McGurn that she and her little ones faced starvation.

Doctor Discovers Want.

Until four weeks ago the father, who had brought his family here from Nova Scotia five months ago, managed to stave off hunger and cold by working as a piano mover. When he was stricken down every cent of income was stopped. Had not Dr. McGurn chanced to discover the real situation of the family yesterday, a tragedy might have been recorded, for Mrs. Millett said: "I could not beg nor allow the children to do so."

Twice in the past two weeks baskets of provisions were sent in by charitable associations, and but Friday John, the thirteen-year-old boy, went to the "Elder Kitchen" and was given two quarts of milk and four eggs. That was all the family had since then.

"I was never in want before in my life," said Mrs. Millett. "I couldn't stand the thought of begging, and I felt I would rather starve if it were not for the children. Even now we must depend upon charity if we are to live, for my husband will not be able to go back to his work for two weeks yet."

Eight Children in Family.

The eight children are: John, thirteen; George, eleven; Clarence, nine; Edith, eight; Grace, seven; Vera, five; Ella, three, and Edward, nine months. George and Clarence have been attending school until actual hunger prevented their going.

The little home, which is on the first floor of the house, consists of four rooms and a hall. It is very modestly furnished and kept scrupulously neat and clean.

APPEAL CASE GOES TO HIGHEST COURT

LYNN, Jan. 12.—A defendant's right to appeal from a suspended sentence, to take a conviction from his name to ease his wins in the higher courts, will be placed before the Supreme Court tomorrow. Attorney James W. Sullivan of this city will bring a writ of mandamus in the case of Dan Into Renado, who was fined $10 on an assault charge and his sentence later suspended. Judge Lummus, who imposed the sentence, is interested in having the case go higher up because the matter has been in dispute for years.

POET WATSON SAILS HOME IN ANGRY MOOD

NEW YORK, Jan. 12.—William Watson, the English poet, who came over to America and announced that his famous poem, "The Woman With the Serpent's Tongue," was aimed at Mrs. Asquith, wife of the British Premier, and her daughter, sailed for England today on the Adriatic. He made every effort to keep his departure secret, but was recognized.

It is understood that he cut short his visit to this country in order to go back to England and face the various charges that have been made against Mrs. Asquith named the Asquiths. One of these charges, made by his brother, who lives in Canada, was to the effect that the poet was morally unbalanced as the result of overwork.

Mr. Watson seemed to be angry when he sailed. His wife, however, was in excellent spirits, and she smiled and seemed to enjoy it immensely when her husband rushed about trying to dodge the newspaper men. One of the reporters went up to him and said:

"Will you have a parting word to say about America before you sail?"

The poet recognized him as a man who had interviewed him when he arrived here and who quoted him as saying that Mrs. Asquith and her daughter were aimed at in his poem.

"You did well!" he said to the newspaper man in a sarcastic tone, evidently referring to the interview which raised such a hubbub. To another reporter who asked him about the poem he said and examined: "Not a word."

His wife laughed merrily. Mr. Watson said to a friend before sailing:

"I consider that I have been badly treated in America. I came over here with a feeling of the greatest warmth for this country. I am disappointed with the way I have been treated by the newspapers. However, I am charmed with what I have seen of America."

FRAUD CHARGE LODGED AGAINST BOSTON MAN

LA PORTE, Ind., Jan. 12.—Harcourt A. Roberts, aged thirty, who was arrested in Indianapolis Friday night and taken to Lafayette, Ind., to answer a charge of swindling several dressmakers in that city, was arraigned in the City Court on the charge of obtaining money under false pretenses.

Roberts, who is said to be a member of a prominent family in Boston, Mass., came to Lafayette from Chicago last Friday and visited several dressmaking establishments, where he represented himself to be an agent of the Marshall Field Company of Chicago. He obtained small payments on a patent skirt marker, which he said he was selling. Later he called on Dr. George F. Kelpey and borrowed money from him to defray his expenses to Indianapolis.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LEADER 84.

WATERBURY, Ct., Jan. 12.—The First Baptist Church of Nonuk has elected Deacon Walker Palmer Sunday school superintendent for the sixty-fourth time. He said: "Thanks, gentlemen, I am eighty-four, but I expect to live another century and keep this office nailed down."

BOSTON ACTRESS WHO HAS SCORED A HIT IN MISS PATSY

MISS GERTRUDE QUINLAN—DANCING PHOTO

Gertrude Quinlan, the Boston girl whose delightful character work is most pleasantly remembered by those who saw her in "Lo County Chairman" and other Savage comedies, has been cast by Henry W. Savage for the leading role in a new comedy which was produced in Binghamton, New York, Monday, and which will be taken into New York. The title is "Miss Patsy" and is adapted by Sewell Collins from Hopkinson Lori Dollinger. Miss Patsy is a female Patsy Bolliver who is always getting into trouble and is usually in hot water. Miss Quinlan made a big hit in the role, which requires great ability as a comedienne, but does not ask for a funny make-up. It will be a pleasure to see Miss Quinlan as she really looks. There is a capable company including Frances Ring, Adelaide Dunlap, Josephine Brown, Maude Leroy, Thomas Meighan, Dan Mason and others.

SHUBERT DEFIES THEATRE TRUST

NEW YORK, Jan. 12.—Lee Shubert throws down the gauntlet to the theatrical syndicate, when, replying to a recently published statement of Al Hayman, right-hand man for Charles Frohman, he offers to purchase any theatre in New York that may not be paying a profit to the syndicate.

Mr. Hayman, at the annual dinner of the association of theatre managers of Greater New York, recently said that there were too many theatres in the city and that business was unsatisfactory.

GROCERY ON FIRE, TENANTS IN PERIL

The lives of several people living in the four-story brick dwelling at No. 67 Hale street, West End, were endangered by a fire in the grocery store on the first floor early today. Many were routed from their beds by the smoke that rolled up through the building, but none were driven into the street.

Fortunately the fire was discovered before it had gained much headway, and Engine No. 6, summoned on a still alarm, succeeded in confining the fire to the grocery store, which was owned by Paul Angelo.

ENGINE SMASHES CAR; NO SIGNALS SET

DOVER, N. H., Jan. 12.—A box car which had been left on the main track by a shifting engine at Sawyer's station, below this city, was the cause of a serious wreck, although no one was injured. The engine was shifting cars on the main track when special engine No. 491 from Portsmouth, in charge of Engineer Hamilton, came along at a high rate of speed and crashed into the car, demolishing both the car and the engine. The engineer and fireman jumped in time to save their lives. The cause of the wreck is said to be the failure of the shifting crew to cover the track with signals.

SOCIETY GIRL TO STUDY FARMING

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Jan. 12.—Miss Elizabeth Moore, daughter of Mrs. Philip N. Moore, president of the National Federation of Women's Clubs and a Vassar graduate, has entered the agricultural department of the University of Missouri at Columbia and has announced her intention of becoming an expert farmer.

Miss Moore is a member of several women's clubs in St. Louis and is a society favorite.

GOVERNMENT INTERVENES IN R. R. WAR

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 12.—With the hope of bringing about a settlement of the differences between the switchmen and the railroads entering Chicago and thereby preventing a strike, the government mediators, Chairman Knapp of the Interstate Commerce Commission and Commissioner of Labor Neill to-day began an inquiry.

Representatives of the switchmen, who are asking for a re-adjustment of the wage scale and improved working conditions, were first heard. They are S. E. Heberling, A. B. Commons, vice president of the Switchmen's Union and G. W. Luckenbill of Chicago, who is acting as secretary of that committee. The railroad side is headed by F. G. Melcher, vice-president of the Rock Island and chairman of the managers' committee of the Chicago roads. Both Commissioner Knapp and Dr. Neill said to-day that there would probably be no development from the conference to-day. R. H. Ashton, general manager of the Chicago & Northwestern; E. A. Jackson, vice-president of the Chicago & Eastern Illinois; D. O. Nevin, general manager of the Lake Erie & Western; and A. W. Schelver, general superintendent of the Pennsylvania lines West of Pittsburg, will appear with Mr. Melcher in presenting the railroads' side.

BRITISH CASH FOR COTTON INDUSTRY

LONDON, Jan. 12.—The British Government to-day went to the aid of the cotton growers when Lord Crewes, Colonial Secretary, announced that the government would grant $50,000 annually for three years to the British Cotton Growing Association to aid in increasing the production.

COLDS CAUSE HEADACHE. LAXATIVE BROMO quinine removes the cold and grip cause, relieves pain. Cures, too. Look for signature, E. W. Grove, 25c.

GERMANY FOR AMERICAN IDEA IN MANCHURIA

BERLIN, Jan. 12.—The German Government to-day replied favorably to the suggestion of Secretary of State Knox of the United States for the neutralization of the Manchurian railways now held by Russia and Japan.

This is the strongest help the plan has yet received. The reply sent to-day to Washington holds that it is consistent with the open-door policy. Germany's stand is expected to have a strong effect on Japan.

A dispatch from Shanghai to-day says that China has rejected the plan advanced by Secretary Knox. Na Tung, senior president of the Chinese foreign board, states that the plan will not be accepted at Pekin. The declaration is made in a formal note to the ministers representing Japan and Russia.

GIRL'S LIFE SAVED BY CORSET STEEL

NEW YORK, Jan. 12.—Pretty May Travis is alive to-day because a corset steel saved her life. She was shot late last night at a dance given by an East Side club at No. 505 First avenue. The bullet was deflected by the corset and inflicted a slight wound instead of a mortal one. The popularity of James Mitchell, "the best tenor on the East Side," brought on a general fight, in which two secretary boys, Nathan and May Travis, was taken to believe when the smoke cleared.

HIS LIMBS SEEM TO BE HOODOOED

BALLSTOWN, N. Y., Jan. 12. Lewis Porter, a newsboy, when a boy had each arm broken separately, then both at the same time and afterward fell from a roof and broke a leg.

Three amputations were necessary, and he has just fallen from a piazza and broken his remaining leg.

PLOT AGAINST KING EXTENDED TO HIS PALACE

LISBON, Jan. 12.—The plot to assassinate King Manuel and overthrow the Government extended to the palace itself, involving more prominent persons than was at first believed. This was learned to-day in semi-official quarters, although the Government is doing everything possible to keep the facts concealed.

Although the palace is guarded by a small army, the King's advisers are greatly agitated and Manuel has changed his sleeping apartment every night since the discovery of the plot. The plot has been shown by papers seized to be more far reaching than any of its kind uncovered in Europe in years.

The ultimate object of the conspiracy was the institution of a republican form of government and the driving from Portugal or the execution of all the monarchical leaders.

The men who engineered the assassination of King Carlos and the Crown Prince were the guiding hands of this new plot.

WOMAN STRANDED WITH ASHES OF SON

GREELEY, Col., Jan. 12. — With the ashes of her dead son in an urn which she carried with her, Mrs. Edwin Gaynor of Omaha is in Greeley, stranded here, without funds to provide for further travel until Public Administrator has worked her way East from San Francisco, where the body of her boy, who was killed in a mine accident in Nome, Alaska, was shipped, and where it took much of her slender funds to cremate the corpse, as he had desired.

WHY YOUR HANDS SHOULD BE CLEAN—The wonderful importance of this will be scientifically explained in the SUNDAY AMERICAN.

GREAT BATTLE IN NICARAGUA RAGING TODAY

COLON, Jan. 12.—Driving back the Government forces, the insurgent column marching on Managua to-day advanced rapidly on Acoyapa, where the Madriz forces are most heavily concentrated. There the decisive battle has been expected between the rebels and the Government.

One hundred men have been killed and the fighting is general. The government troops suffered by far the heavier loss. They were caught unprepared by Estrada's army. General Vasquez's sentinels, spread out for forty miles, having been captured before they could give the warning. General Chamorro has ordered the capture of Acoyapa.

The first struggle came at Laverdas, ten miles from Acoyapa, where after a short but sharp contest the regulars scattered pellmell, taking refuge with the main body at Acoyapa.

Both the Government and the insurgents, however, rushed reinforcements.

CHARLES HEAD DIES SUDDENLY IN NEW YORK

Charles Head, senior member of the Boston and New York Stock Exchange firm of Charles Head & Co., died today in his New York office at No. 15 Broad street, from a stroke of apoplexy. He was talking to one of his partners, Charles G. West, at the time. Mr. West rushed for a physician, but Mr. Head was dead before aid could be summoned.

Mr. Head, who was one of the most prominent brokers in the country and a pioneer in the international stock brokerage business, was on a visit to his New York office, having left Boston only yesterday. Though connected with many large financial affairs he seldom left Boston of late, making his home with his daughter Mrs. Philip Stockton, wife of the president of the City Trust Company, at Manchester.

Grief over the death of his wife a little more than a year ago is believed to have had much to do with hastening the end. He was sixty years old. Mrs. Head, one of the most popular women in Boston society, was taken ill with pneumonia and died in less than a week. Mr. Head never got the same after that. He tried to live in the old mansion at 412 Beacon street, but the fact that both his daughters were married and that his wife was gone made the place almost unbearable for him. He finally leased it and went to live with his daughter, Mrs. Philip Stockton, wife of the president of the City Trust Company at Manchester.

Mr. Head was noted as many times a millionaire. He had been active in the brokerage business for almost forty years and his house had an international reputation. Charles C. West was one of the partners in charge of the New York branch of the firm. The Boston branch of the business was conducted in the little old building at No. 74 State street where he had been for many years. Charles Sullivan was Mr. Head's Boston partner.

One of the daughters who survives him, Mrs. William A. Jewell, is a widow. Mrs. Philip Stockton (Margaret Head) is the other.

Besides his brokerage business Mr. Head was interested in many large corporations, though not often as a promoter. He was president of the Flora Sugar Company; president and a director of the American Hard Paper Ware Company and a member of the governing committee of the Boston Stock Exchange.

STRUCK BY STEAMER; SAILOR VANISHES

Captain George Pinley is making inquiries in every direction in the hope of finding out the name of the sailor that left his craft, tore away her ribboom and started her leaking while off the lighthide and carried off to some unknown destination Bernhard Boolson, one of the barkentine's officers, who climbed on board the stranger, as he thought, to save his life. The other vessel steamed away promptly without making her identity known. Seaman Boolson is penniless going yet, headed for somewhere.

The Hancock, which was bound from St. John, N. B., was towed leaking into port.

SUBMARINES WILL STAY AT NAVY YARD

NEWPORT, R. I., Jan. 12.—The new submarines assigned to the third submarine flotilla, now at the Boston Navy Yard, will stay there for the remainder of the Winter for instructions of officers and the crews as they will then come to Narragansett Bay for drills and flotilla manoeuvres.

MRS. FRANK J. GOULD IS REPORTED ENGAGED TO WED RALPH THOMAS

Latest photograph of Mrs. Frank J. Gould.

NEW YORK, Jan. 12.—A definite report that Mrs. Frank J. Gould is soon to marry Ralph Thomas, nephew of Washington Thomas, president of the Sugar Trust, is in circulation among friends of Mrs. Gould and Mr. Thomas.

While no absolute confirmation of the report was obtained, it being impossible to reach Mrs. Gould or Mr. Thomas, the confidence with which the possible engagement is discussed in society circles gave it credence.

The present report is to the effect that the wedding will take place soon and that the couple will depart immediately on a long honeymoon trip, either to the West Indies or to the Mediterranean.

Mrs. Margaret Kelly Gould obtained a divorce from Frank J. Gould a few months ago, after several temporary separations, due to their home differences. Mr. Gould has since been sued by Miss Bessie De Voe, an actress and dancer, who has permitted a series of letters from him to be made public.

She charges him with misrepresentation and fraud in connection with an alleged breach of promise to marry her.

The Goulds have two little daughters, who, by order of the court, have their time divided between the parents.

BALLINGER ROW TO CONFERENCE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—The Ballinger inquiry caused a debate in the House today when Representative Dalzell called up the joint resolution to investigate the Secretary of the Interior and the forest service. He asked unanimous consent that the Senate amendments be disagreed to, and a joint resolution sent to conference.

Finally, no motion to disagree was agreed to, and the resolution went to conference. The Speaker appointed the following conferees: Manager Dalzell of Pennsylvania, Smith of Iowa, and Fitzgerald of New York. The Speaker said that Representative Fitzgerald was selected because of the absence of Chairman Clark, the minority leader.

Former Forester Pinchot is believed to be preparing a statement on his dismissal by President Taft and gathering data to be used in the fight against Ballinger.

L. R. Glavis, whose charges against the general land offices raised the present trouble, is on his way now from the State of Washington. He will confer with Pinchot as well as testify in the joint congressional investigation.

NEW SYSTEM IS URGED FOR TOWN REPORTS

Director Charles F. Getteny of the State Bureau of Statistics makes three important recommendations relative to municipal accounting reform, in a report made to the Legislature today. These are:

1. Legislation having for its object the introduction of improved systems of accounting and an examination of city and town accounts by the State, somewhat like that which has been conducted by the Commonwealth for many years with respect to county accounts.

2. Legislation providing for the fixing of responsibility in towns upon one officer somewhat analogous to the auditor in cities, who may be required to keep an account of all the financial transactions of the town.

3. Legislation providing for a uniform annual map for the towns of the Commonwealth.

Carelessness in Accounts.

Director Getteny makes some interesting statements, including the following:

"It is impossible, under existing methods, for many of our local officials to render an accurate and intelligent accounting for the city affairs.

"The best of the financial reports are poorly arranged, and the whole contains glaring errors, misstatements, a mass of figures which mean nothing, and concerning which fail to add correctly, while important data which should be placed before the citizens are entirely omitted.

"These above facts it is to be regretted, are true, however, in the majority of cases, instead of being permitted to be the blame for their condition upon the printer, be held responsible for errors solely due to their own carelessness.

"I think I risk little in saying that for every dollar lost through defalcation or actual dishonesty one hundred have been lost or wasted through loose, unbusinesslike methods of handling finances and failure to have the citizens properly informed.

O. K., but Didn't Balance.

"The attitude of some of the local officials is well illustrated by the following letter received by the bureau signed by a town treasurer:

"'Enclosed please find the report of the town of ..... In a condition which I do not like to send in, but I can't seem to make it balance.

"'I have worked at it a good deal, but to no effect, so I thought I had better not put it in 'till.

"'The several items are correct, I am sure, but when bunched they don't jibe.

"'If you can use this report, all right; if you can't you will have to look up another man to straighten it out. I have worked on it all I am going to.'

"The debt sheet enclosed is O. K."

FUGITIVE BROUGHT BACK ON 2 CHARGES

Inspector Harry Pierce brought here from New York W. R. Kimball, otherwise known as William R. Kimball, forty-nine years of age, of Chicago, Ill., in custody on two indictments. For three weeks past Kimball has been under arrest in New York City, and while awaiting the result of the extradition proceedings Inspector Pierce was forced to make two trips to the metropolis.

The indictment charges Kimball with larceny by means of worthless checks of $1,000 or more with fraudulently procuring establishment of the Hotel Vendome. Kimball has been wanted since last February.

CONGRESS TO SAVE ON HARBOR WORK

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—There will not be any river and harbor bill this session of Congress for the next. This decision has been arrived at by the managers of the party in Congress. Senator Aldrich, Penrose and Hale, and Representatives Payne, Tawney and Speaker Cannon, on account of the deficit in the revenues.

Further the party managers don't feel that Congress should appropriate large sums for new Federal buildings. With both of these measures could there be left to make the revenues meet the expenditures.

DUNCAN WILL BE WELCOMED TO HARVARD

Harvard college authorities are not planning to bar Raymond Duncan, the English champion of Greek costume, from lecturing there Friday on "Hellenic Music," according to Joseph Warren, secretary of the faculty. Duncan and his wife are arraigned in New York the other day because their three-yearold boy was clad as the old Greeks, and not in warm American clothes. They were discharged, though.

"Raymond Duncan is to be welcomed here, rather than asked to cancel his engagement," said Secretary Warren. "The faculty has not even considered the question of barring Mr. Duncan. It has not even been called to the faculty's attention. Any such talk as that comes from the outside."

Sanders Theatre will be open to the public Friday night when Mr. Duncan delivers his lecture. Professional students from all over New England are expected to be present.

WOMEN WILL RAISE $20,000 FOR STRIKERS

Declaring that more than the interests of the striking girl shirtwaist makers were at stake, but the issue now involves the right of fo sex in all lines of labor and progress is/ve of the most enthusiastic members of the Women's Trade League of Boston stirred out this afternoon to interest members of Boston's most exclusive society clubs in a mass meeting to be held in Faneuil Hall Saturday evening at 8 o'clock. It is planned to have prominent women occupy seats on the platform, and thus give only official sanction to the local movement to raise a $20,000 sympathy fund to the striking girls in New York.

Professional women of the city, settlement workers, sociologists and women wage-earners in all lines will be asked to join the movement, with the idea of making the mass meeting one of the most memorable of the kind here or elsewhere.

PLEA OF GUILTY BY MARCOTTE

George Marcotte, twenty-one years old, of Lowell, pleaded guilty before Justice Bond in the Middlesex Superior Court today, to a charge of assaulting his twelve-year-old brother, Adelard Marcotte, with intent to murder him. Marcotte threw the boy into one of the canals at Lowell on the afternoon of Monday, January 3.

Following an eloquent plea by Attorney Edmund P. Lowell, attorney for the defendant, for clemency, Justice Bond rendered decision.

District Attorney John J. Higgins, for the Commonwealth announced that Marcotte had been examined by alienists, who found the young man mentally sound.

BLUNDER BY POLICE CUT DOWN LEAD

A blunder in the figuring by the police of the returns of John F. Fitzgerald was responsible for the announcement of his plurality as being 1,000 less than it should have been last night. One of the men employed in the tabulation dropped a final zero in transferring a bunch of figures and that particular clipper meant just 1,000 votes less for the next Mayor.

When the final report had been heard from and the police had footed up their totals they announced that Fitzgerald had won by a plurality of 231. At that time the figures of the BOSTON AMERICAN showed a lead for Fitzgerald of about 1,400. But as the police figures were of a semi-official nature they were given as the returns of the police, in the AMERICAN.

When 199 precincts had been heard from two returns at City Hall showed that Fitzgerald was leading by 1,234 while the police figures were only 231. City Hall was led to alter their figures, which were practically correct because of the police returns, thus giving Fitzgerald 1,000 less than he had received.

This explains the variance of the results announced. The AMERICAN announced from the start, after the first returns came in, and was the first newspaper to do it, that Fitzgerald had won. According to corrected figures Fitzgerald's plurality is 1,415.

Incidentally the straw vote published by the Sunday AMERICAN a week ago last Sunday, showing a probable plurality of 2,885 for Fitzgerald, was the only correct forecast made by a newspaper.

Why Does Not The Stomach Digest Itself?

An Unsolvable Problem, Which Has Puzzled Physicians of All Schools.

A Trial Package of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets Sent Free.

There seems to be no logical reason why the stomach should not digest itself when we consider the fact that it secretes digestive fluids and acids which are powerful enough to disintegrate and digest meats, eggs, fruits, cereals, vegetables and other forms of food taken into it.

In animals which were killed while in full digestion the stomach has undergone complete self-digestion after death, when the body was kept warm; and in human beings who have died suddenly, while digestion was going on, it was found at the autopsy that not only had the stomach been digested, but also the liver, pancreas, spleen, and portions of the intestines.

The question naturally presents itself, "What protects the stomach from self-digestion during life?" Dr. Hunter declared that the "principle of life" in living things prevented this action from being digested by its own fluids, but Dr. Barnard successfully demonstrated that the blind loop of Living food, when introduced through a fistula or artificial opening into the stomach of a dog, undergoes complete digestion, and Dr. Pavy, through similar experiment, found that the same was true of a rabbit's ear.

While the normal stomach is immune from self-digestion, there are many cases on record, however, in which a long-standing gastritis, and perverted digestion, has completely digested or eaten away the mucous membrane lining of the stomach, and in some instances has engendered gastric ulcer, which ate its way clear through the stomach wall, and caused a fatal peritonitis.

In all cases of perverted function of the stomach, which manifests itself by the numerous well-known symptoms of indigestion and dyspepsia, Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets act as a corrective, restoring it to a normal condition, toning up the secretory glands as well as the lacteal glands, which absorb the food, and at the same time assisting the stomach in the process of digestion, and preventing all possibility of such conditions arising as will cause perverted function, gastritis, gastric ulcer, or the eating away of the mucous membrane of the stomach.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are exceedingly powerful digestives, a single grain being sufficient to digest 3,000 grains of food, including meats, vegetables, cereals, etc. They digest albuminous and starchy foods equally well. Whenever the stomach is in a weakened condition, and so lacking in tone, that it furnishes an insufficient amount of gastric juice, such symptoms as heartburn, biliousness, headache, belching of gas and sour eructations are sure to appear, and make one feel generally miserable.

Such symptoms can, however, be overcome and done away with at once. Simply take one or two of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets and forget all about your digestive troubles. They do their work promptly and thoroughly, every particle of food being completely digested, and fermentation, decomposition, and flatulence and heaviness in stomach after eating, relieved and cured. Purchase a box from your druggist today, price 50 cents. Also send us your name and address for free sample. Address F. A. Stuart Co., 150 Stuart Bldg., Marshall, Mich.

MAYOR CANNOT DODGE UNDER NEW CHARTER

When the newly elected Mayor takes office on February 7 he will have authority greater than that vested in any of his predecessors. One section of the charter gives him absolute veto power over acts of the City Council, a specification that is unique among city charters the country over. He may dismiss heads of departments at will, the only formality required being the filing of a written notice of the dismissal.

In appointing the heads of departments and commissions, the Mayor is not liable to adverse action on the part of the City Council. That body will not review the appointments, but they must go to the Civil Service Commission for approval or rejection.

Prepares the Budget Alone.

All orders of financial appropriations, except loans, shall originate with the Mayor, including those intended to meet current expenses. They shall be submitted to the City Council, which may reduce or reject any of these items, but may not increase any of them. The annual budget also shall be prepared by the Mayor.

Loan orders may be introduced by either the Mayor or any member of the City Council. If the City Council fails to act upon such order or ordinance within sixty days of its introduction it becomes operative forthwith.

The Mayor and Council are given joint power in the establishment, abolishment or consolidation of city departments or the transfer of one division of one department to another.

The Street Commissioners, heretofore elected by popular vote, shall be appointed by the Mayor. This commission is given much of the authority heretofore vested in the Council, such as the naming of streets, the granting of permits for the storing of explosives, the temporary closing of streets, the use of streets temporarily for special purposes, such as coasting, the location of poles, conduits, subterranean pipes, etc., all subject to the approval of the Mayor. As the Street Commissioners are the Mayor's appointees he is influenced in that department is paramount.

All offices to which the Council now appoints are abolished by the new charter, and the Council is empowered to create such offices as are necessary to the proper action of its business, subject to the approval of the Mayor.

The duties of the Finance Commission and the Civil Service Commission are purely advisory.

Many Plums to Pluck.

Among the appointments which the Mayor-elect will make immediately upon his accession are the following:

Superintendent of streets, salary, $7,500.

Superintendent of supplies, $5,000.

Water commissioner, $5,000.

Penal institutions commissioner, $5,000.

Wire commissioner, $5,000.

City auditor, $6,000.

Two assessors, $4,000 each.

Building commissioner, $5,000.

City collector, $5,000.

Election commissioner, $3,500.

City engineer, $6,000.

Fire commissioner, $5,000.

Three health commissioners, one at $4,500 and two at $4,000 each.

Superintendent of markets, $3,600.

Superintendent of public buildings, $3,000.

Superintendent of printing, $3,000.

Superintendent of public grounds department, $4,000.

City registrar, $4,000.

Three schoolhouse commissioners, one at $4,000 and two at $3,500.

Soldiers' relief commissioner, $3,500.

City treasurer, $7,500.

Sealer of weights and measures, $2,000.

There are scores of other positions carrying salaries ranging from $1,200 to $2,500 a year which the new Mayor will be able to fill.

VOTE FOR SCHOOL COMMITTEE BY WARDS

	1910 Ellis	Duff	Doyle	1907 Scull
Ward 1	2495	1836

WINNERS AND LOSERS SIZE UP ELECTION

It's Over

By MORTON BIRGE.

The voter went out to his work today
With the care-free seat of a boy at play
And extolled his sentiments blithe and gay.
"Well, it's over!"

"Hurray," said the voter, "it's done at last.
It's happened, it's finished, it's through.
It's past.
It's hushed to the mizzen. It's nailed down fast.
Yep, it's over!"

"Away with election and moss and strife
It's no fun for my former and normal life,
My job and my friends and my kids and wife,
For it's over!"

"But me? Why, yes, the result is all right.
But the particular point I indite
Is my intense and emphatic delight
That it's over!"

P. S.—Since this was perpetrated the word "Over" looks more like "Re-count."

The election brought joy and regret, joy to the followers of Ex-Mayor John F. Fitzgerald, the victor in the battle at the polls, regret to those who supported the other candidates for the mayoralty.

Mr. Fitzgerald, in a statement issued early today, claimed that the result was a vindication. He said that he was very, very happy, and that he bears no ill-will against anyone.

"The people, who are the final judges, have made their decision," said Mayor-elect John A. Hibbard. "My candidacy was based on a firm belief that the city's affairs properly, if done could successfully be run by Mr. Fitzgerald. I see nothing in the returns to alter my opinion. I was elected to perform certain functions for the citizens. To-day I can say, without fear of dispute, that I have accomplished all I proposed. I leave to my successor a city treasury with ample balances on hand, a city plant in good condition, an executive organization which, except in minor particulars, will defy any attempts at improvement."

"Victory for School Progress."

David A. Ellis, who defeated Mrs. John A. Duff for the School Committee by a majority of 13,105, made this short and terse comment: "I am greatly pleased at the indorsement, which I regard not as a personal triumph, but as a victory for school progress."

Mrs. Duff, although defeated by a very decisive vote, announced that she would try again. "It is the first election under the revised city charter," she said, "and I how to defeat. I believe I will have better luck next time, so I intend running for the School Board again."

Edward Billings, secretary of the Good Government Association, said: "The Storrow's campaign manager, would make no extended statement. I must decline to make any statement on the election. Mr. Storrow has made a statement and I fully concur in what he has said." was all he would say.

"Bunker Hill Was a Defeat."

President David T. Montague, Republican City Committee, regretted the outcome, indeed. "I can say no more than I could to help James J. Storrow, and I am sorry he is defeated," he said.

Ex-Governor Curtis Guild, Jr., who stumped for Mr. Storrow and took a very active part in the campaign, said: "Bunker Hill was a defeat. I have not, however, received the slightest intimation from those who on that day fought on the winning side of the descendants of those who sat aloof on the housetops and criticised the patriots in the trenches are to-day particularly proud of it."

Governor Eben S. Draper, when he learned the result, as evidenced by the press returns, issued this statement: "I understand that Ex-Mayor Fitzgerald has been re-elected Mayor of Boston. The contest has apparently been a close one. The Republican leaders of Boston and the Commonwealth have been entirely frank. I have no further comment to make."

Lieutenant-Governor Louis A. Frothingham, who spoke at the big Tremont Temple rally for Mr. Storrow, declared: "There is little more to say than that it was a hard fought and a very close fight, and as usual the will of the majority prevailed."

That he would not concede the election of Ex-Mayor Fitzgerald was the gist of a statement by Herman Hormel, secretary of the Republican City Committee. Mr. Hormel took a prominent part in the campaign. "I will not concede the election of Fitzgerald," he said. "There will, beyond all doubt, be a recount. The fight during the election is not decided and that it cannot be determined until a recount has been made."

Keliher Is Proud.

Congressman John A. Keliher, a Democrat and one of Mr. Storrow's stump orators, declared he was proud of the fight Mr. Storrow put up.

"I am proud of the fight that Mr. Storrow has put up, and proud also of my own part in it. I would certainly do it all over again," he said.

"The ballots figures are still uncertain, and although at one time Fitzgerald's plurality was conceded to be about 1,500 we have been getting later reports that make me certain the election is not quite yet settled. Until the final official figures are in, it is futile to make any detailed statements.

"When you think of the close contest, especially when few would allow that Mr. Storrow had a ghost of a chance, two weeks ago, you must admit that it has been a splendid fight. As I say, I am proud of the contest put up by Mr. Storrow, and proud of my own part in it.

The "Czar of Ward 6," Martin M. Lomasney, was very pointed in his comment. "The figures talk," said Martin. Let them do all the talking. The people have heard enough statements from the politicians. Let them gain education and profit from the statistics. They are eloquent."

When approached for a statement, John A. Sullivan, chairman of the Finance Commission, dictated the following: "The members of the Finance Commission are pleased to comment on the result of the election. While expressing no opinion on the outcome, Mr. Sullivan regretted that he still does not feel in a position to voice a personal opinion.

Kennedy Calls It Vindication.

His former associate on the old commission, John F. Kennedy, was very much pleased. Kennedy, who spoke in a number of rallies for the ex-mayor, said: "I am deeply gratified at the result—the election of Ex-Mayor Fitzgerald and his vindication at the hands of the people. I am also pleased that the citizens of Boston have approved of the manner in which I have waited a long time for vindication by the people for the position I took in opposition to my colleagues on the old Finance Commission, and am inexpressibly pleased at the verdict rendered."

Councillor William F. Murray of Charlestown said he believed Fitzgerald would have a larger plurality. "I expected the result, and am not surprised. I think Fitzgerald's vote was not more than 10,000 behind Mr. Storrow's. I was surprised at Mayor Hibbard's small vote and I believe that Mr. Storrow's town failed to the ex-Mayor's support."

Thomas F. Kenny, the ex-Mayor's former secretary, said: "The election of Mr. Fitzgerald justifies his oft-repeated statement: 'The voters will be found right.' The people have rendered an honest verdict. The vindication of the people of Boston, and those non-residents who have stood to foment the abuse and vicious attacks will find that Mr. Fitzgerald is not the man his critics tried to paint him."

FITZGERALD TELLS WHAT HE PROPOSES TO DO AS MAYOR

In a formal statement issued to the press today Mayor-elect John F. Fitzgerald discussed his election as follows:

"My many pleas, promises and untrue things which have been said of me the last three years would still be believed if I had been defeated, but with my constituents in the Mayor's office will befit, that there is great satisfaction in the victory for that reason.

"The people of Boston will never know the extraordinary methods that were adopted to accomplish my defeat. Not content with the influence of every conspicuous man in the city, at the same time the extraordinary powers which the Mayor will have to exert, a larger responsibility on his shoulders, and he can do vastly better work.

Aims to Benefit City.

"Of course, a great deal depends on how much the Civil Service Commission works in the matter of appointments. I shall be disposed to be fair, and not harass the Mayor's office, much good will be accomplished.

"If however, they attempt to grind me down slowly in the matter of appointments, friction is bound to arise at once, the detriment of the city.

"It is my intention to continue my line of thought and action and endeavor to secure for the benefit of the city. I think I have a right to feel that I was elected by no small by the financial interests was because of the fact that the business of the people were becoming educated to the industrial and commercial needs of the city, particularly the necessity for the investment of local capital, and the fact that if I ever got in the office at the end of my term that the people of Boston will be fully and fairly advised of the real knowledge of the situation with corresponding results.

"It is my intention to work for the different planks in my platform, notwithstanding the campaign arguments that they were lumped up. There is as much common sense in my advocating railroad terminals for Boston as there is Boston and Albany, controlled by Boston capital, as there was in Governor Eustis Pillsbury's the Hoosac Tunnel to maintain our connection with the West years ago.

"There is also as much reason for the electrification of the steam lines within ten miles of Boston as there is in electrifying the railroad lines at a longer distance from the city of New York.

"If the Boston business men will work with me and urge the Representatives in Congress to petition that body for the establishment of a free port, there is no reason why Boston should not be the third city in the United States to adopt that policy which has proved so successful in Hamburg.

Plan To Extend Business.

"I shall work with the business men of the city to promote friendly relations with Canada and shall be glad to accompany representative bodies of business men to Montreal, Toronto and Ottawa, so that the people of that section will know that we want to be neighbors.

"It shall also be my endeavor to urge Canadian railroads to make Boston the United States port of one of the big Canadian railroads.

"Boston's present debt does not frighten me if the business men and the people of the city will co-operate with me to take advantage of our opportunities, and I shall not be afraid to go before the Legislature and advocate public improvements which, while costly at the same time will be of vast benefit to the city.

"I believe in the law operative in England which permits the public authorities to take lands on all sides of the street for widenings or street improvements and get the benefit of the public improvement. By this method three improvements have cost London, and other cities, little, if any money.

"I shall go before the Legislature and ask, and think we will get it, subways to South Boston and Dorchester, and there is no question but what it is needed and no reason why it should not be granted.

Thankful to All.

"I want to thank everybody who has been of assistance to me in this contest. It was only by the devotion of the people in all of the different sections of the city to my cause that we were able to win.

"I repeat that I will go into City Hall untrammelled and unpledged to any single human being in the city. No public service corporation, or corporation of any kind, contributed a dollar to my campaign.

"No person will be appointed to the city or likely to sell goods to the city, contributed a dollar to my campaign, and no contractor was solicited or contributed a dollar to it.

"I bear no ill-will toward those who attempted to injure me with baseless slanders. The people's judgment has washed away both the injury and my resentment.

"I propose that we should enter upon the new era of our municipal life under the new charter 'with malice toward none, with charity for all,' and proceed hopefully to build up the city, restoring her to the place among the great seaport cities of the world."

WILD GREETING GIVEN VICTOR IN ELECTION

Never before in the history of Boston has any man elected to public office ever received such a rousing reception as election day as that according to Mayor-elect John F. Fitzgerald when his election had been positively assured.

Ten thousand people—men, women and children swarmed through the hotel discussing the campaign and congratulating one another to get a glimpse of the "boy and next Mayor."

The greeting extended to Mr. Fitzgerald rivalled the celebration that signalled the return of a conqueror to Rome in the olden days.

Bands played continuously, flags were waving, and from the roof cheers resounded everywhere. Several times Mr. Fitzgerald was obliged to respond to the shouts. Around the crowds of people who wanted to shake him by the hand and congratulate him on his election often he was in danger of being injured when the enthusiasm of his admirers ran high. People jumped upon one another in their eagerness, and but for several of his friends who came to his rescue, he would have been swamped by the surging multitude below.

Nearly Wrecked Hotels.

The demonstration reached such a pitch that property in both the Quincy House and the Parker House was endangered and the "Little Napoleon" told the people to go to Faneuil Hall, where he would address them.

At the hall people yelled themselves hoarse. The members of the Jefferson Club of Ward 6, Fitzgerald's native hall, which, appropriately enough, was headed by a big brass band, playing all the popular airs, "Sweet Adeline" and "Here's to Mike Kelley" among them, were in the vanguard. Everyone in the crowd sang the famous campaign song while the band played it continuously.

When Mr. Fitzgerald mounted the fatal cab bedlam broke loose, and it was fully half an hour before he could be heard. He delivered a brief address and left amid the wildest cheering. He jumped into the taxicab and went to the Quincy House, where he was followed by several hundred of his admirers, eager to get another look at their favorite.

Mrs. Page at Reception.

Everyone who had anything at all to do with the campaign was entertained in the crowds in the lobby and dining-rooms of the hotel. Mr. Fitzgerald held a reception in one of the rooms and received about three hundred. "Sweet Adeline" was "killed" each. Mrs. Page, who had stumped the city for Fitzgerald against Storrow's school

THE TRUE FACTS

The advertisement on Page 3 headed "VOTE FOR" was prepared for Dwinell-Wright Company for publication in eight prominent Boston newspapers on Monday, January 10th, and the orders therefor were placed. On Saturday morning, January 8th, a reconsideration of the propriety of printing this ad on the eve of so important an election as that of yesterday resulted in the abandonment of the idea and the cancellation of the orders. Notwithstanding the positive request to "kill" the ad, two Boston newspapers, through some inadvertence, ran it. I desire to assure the public that its publication was unintended, and that my client, Dwinell-Wright Co., should not be held responsible for any of the apparent indelicacy of utilizing a date and text calculated to take advantage of the universal interest in a very serious political situation.

HIBBARD NOT TO RECEIVE A FEDERAL POST

The report that Mayor Hibbard will be appointed to succeed Supervisor of the Port Joseph Casey, if the latter is forced before his term expires two years hence, was scouted at to Federal circles to-day. Hibbard has declared that he will not accept, but would not talk for publication. One Federal official said:

"All talk regarding Supervisor McCarthy's successor is premature, to put it mildly. But if his office was vacated and a successor was to be appointed there is nothing to indicate that Hibbard would be selected. What Senators Lodge and Crane think of this was shown by his reception in Washington recently, and by what Senator Lodge said in rebuke of his visit there at that time.

"There is not much chance of Mayor Hibbard ever getting another Federal office in Massachusetts, in my opinion, because of anything incidental to the mayoralty campaign just over. Far from it. I am of the opinion that the Senators were not surprised by Hibbard's candidacy.

"The course pursued by Republicans in the city of Boston was deserving especially. Election night twelve very prominent Republicans dined together and it was significant, perhaps, that every one of these individuals refrained from stating positively or asking anybody else how he voted."

PHILLIES' OWNER UP IN ARMS AGAINST AMERICAN PRESIDENT

YOUNG LOUGHREY WINS OVER DAVE DESHLER BY A WIDE MARGIN

Cambridge Boxer Proves an Easy Opponent for Fast Fighting Philadelphian at Armory A. A. Bouts.

By I. S. CLARK.

"He's a perfect demon."

"Can't that boy fight?"

"What a firebrand for action."

These and a few more fancy expressions were heard on all sides when the Armory A. A. members left the ringside after watching Young Loughrey, the Quincy lightweight biff artist, clean up Dave Deshler, the local mitt slasher in their twelve-round argument with the gloves last night.

At the same time that the fine things were said about Loughrey comments of regret were heard on the disappointing showing made by Deshler. As Jack Sheridan, looking at the show with an expert's eye, said: "He left everything he had on the rack," which was about the true reason for the sorry showing the former shifty and clever boxer made. He did not have the speed or the snap to his action that has made him such a brilliant performer in the past and he seemed to grow leg weary under the stress of Loughrey's terrific forcing style.

Deshler Had a Spurt.

About the only thing Deshler did to his credit was the rally he made in the final rounds. When he was hopelessly beaten he stood up under the punishing methods that Loughrey was using to nail the big end of the purse.

Never before has Deshler been seen taking the tough punishment that Loughrey handed out to him last night and he acknowledged that the game was too swift for him by voluntarily quitting against the latter Loughrey in the clinches. He had flashes of his former speed and cleverness when they came Loughrey had to look out for his own safety, but they were so few and far between that they did not help Deshler any. Loughrey, going the pace decidedly more than Dave in the speedier style which was the case about three-fourths of the bout.

The way Loughrey carried the fight made things look black for Deshler in several rounds as he was rocked by welts on the head that came with surprising force. Loughrey might win by a knockout, something that had not happened in Deshler's career, and he pulled out of some tight places by using his noddle to the limit, his ring experience coming to his rescue.

Banged on the Body.

The body punching Deshler got was pain ful to watch. Loughrey was forever beating his left into the region of the liver and his frequent landing certainly had some effect in spoiling the local lad's speed. The Quaker was never satisfied to land one punch but he was always piling in with a bunch, mauling Deshler's middle till Dave got a good hold on them. He seemed like a person trying to drive a nail by stepping from footing in and keep wound up from start to finish. It was only when the distress signal came preceding the gong that Deshler was shown any relief from the distress signal and proceeding to get his footing when the round was called out of the pathway of the noisy hurricane that was trying to knock him out.

As a joker Loughrey proved a surprise. At the game Deshler was trying to get off in a clinch by himself let me his master go he was nearly spoiled by a quick and snappy action and as a result was badly cut over the nose and left eye, the latter emitting red salva soon after the battle, as Loughrey was getting his gloves around thumps across till he could get Deshler in position to rush in close and lather away with both hands.

Roughhouse Tactics.

Loughrey's mode of warfare is no gentle art. He tests his opponent's ability other fellow and rough tactics are part of his stock in trade and he had all the best of it in the battle last night. He was very guilty of overstepping ring etiquette Loughrey for hitting lower than necessary and Deshler wound up the fight with his face and playing merrily with his elbows, but the Quincy scrapper was the one to get the boos at the time.

Like a true sailing Loughrey was willing to take a chance to connect with his opponent's body and he was careful to Deshler key on the alert to prevent being caught in a position where he could not use that he was singing from every angle.

Loughrey had Deshler in bad shape when the first round was called on and the three rounds that followed gave the latter and his team mates cause to think that Deshler would be in shape to stand the gaff when Deshler kept from looking and in the opening session Deshler was forced to do considerable hard from the exertion he or meeting Loughrey's touch narrowly escaped being put to sleep in the first round when they slashed up for the second round as Loughrey was forced to take the count of six own welterite, intent only on sticking his head into Dave's glove and taking the rounds. Deshler began to slow down and for the next few rounds showed good footing, but as put on a little heave in the welts and forced Deshler to do some fast retiring, yet he landed the stamina of the Quincy boy and took it to the limit in the twelve.

Lively Short Prelim.

There was a lot of excitement in one of the preliminaries when Eddie Connolly of Everett was put to the test by Jack Sullivan, the latter with Young Nelson as Lawrence. Loughrey round was over both boys' features were pulled crimson from the fast mixing that followed. In the other Connolly threatened to jar Nelson's head off of his neck from his shoulders self that held him up. It was easy money for the latter and he got last of the decision. First Councils looked as winner by the short route, as he pounded rights on Nelson's jaw. Nelson was rugged and stood up under the punishment in fine shape and in the seventh round he had Connolly in bad shape on Connolly's jaw that nearly ended the bout. Connolly finished in fine shape, awarding the verdict to Nelson.

Young Nixon and George Alger, the Everbridge rivals, met for the third time, and they had a hot contest for six rounds. Nixon scored a couple of knockdowns and his cleverness won him the award.

Donahue, the sailor lad from the U. S. S. Ohio, had a shade on Mickey Connolly of South Framingham, winning in six rounds, the fight.

Jack Johnson There.

Champion Jack Johnson took in the show and after being introduced recited of a neat speech on his ring career and made a hit by getting of some sportsmanlike remarks about his coming fight with Jeffries. He held the close attention of the members for about five minutes but the action that has made him such a brilliant performer in the past and he seemed to grow leg weary under the strain of Loughrey's terrific forcing style.

BOUT BY ROUNDS.

ROUND ONE—Loughrey was the first to score, jabbing with his left. Then Deshler started rushing in with right and left driving Loughrey to cover. Loughrey got in close battering with both hands till Dave tied him up. Deshler missed a right uppercut and they mixed. Deshler forced Loughrey to the ropes but he came out clinging a right to the eye that cut Dave's optic. Even round.

ROUND TWO—They exchanged lefts to the head and Deshler shifted, landing left on the body. Then Loughrey got busy, forcing Dave back to the ropes and incidentally passed him outside of the ring. Loughrey landed on Dave, fighting with both hands. As Loughrey pushed Dave around right for the ropes Deshler was breathing hard from the fast action. Loughrey was setting but helped his right across for the jaw when Loughrey was within reach. Loughrey kept plugging in never giving Deshler a chance to land. Loughrey round.

ROUND FIVE—Both sparred for an opening. Deshler jabbed and swung right for the jaw. He missed. They mixed left to the head. Then he sailed in wounding with left and right. Loughrey ducking on the inset as he went on his haircut landing a left to the body. Loughrey forced Deshler to the ropes and put a left to the head. While on the ropes Deshler snapped a right to the jaw and as the bell they swapped lefts. Even round.

ROUND SIX—Deshler landed with right and left for the head. Loughrey ducked them. Loughrey soon had Dave working to and fro in the ring with left to the head and lefts as Deshler was wholly on the defensive. Loughrey knew he had Dave going and shot over a terrific smash on the jaw, which sent Deshler to the floor in a heap. Deshler arose in a groggy manner. Loughrey's round.

ROUND EIGHT—Loughrey landed with a right on the jaw. Deshler tried to mix it with the champion, but was worsted at it. Deshler did get home a right to the body but took a trimming with both hands from the quaker. Deshler appeared to be in a groggy condition as he walked to the corner. As Dave sparred for an opening Loughrey landed a left to the head. Loughrey forced Deshler to the ropes with a left to the body. Deshler ducked a right for the jaw and landed his left pretty low several times. Loughrey forced Deshler to the ropes and Deshler was willing to mix when Loughrey landed a terrific left to the body and a right to the jaw. Even round.

ROUND ELEVEN—Loughrey got home a couple of hard lefts to the body before Deshler was able to get his right across for the jaw. Deshler was active and shot over a left to the head. Loughrey ducked a swing low in his delivery and was cautioned by the referee. Deshler got a left to the head how he got even. Deshler forced and planted his right on Loughrey's chin. Even round.

ROUND TWELVE—Deshler met Loughrey with a left to the head. While jabbed his left to the mat with Loughrey undecided. Deshler landed right then Dave backed to the ropes, nothing away. Loughrey tried an uppercut but Deshler ducked it and forced Loughrey to the ropes. He swarmed in lefts to the head and body. Loughrey was forcing while Deshler quickly fired. Loughrey's round.

EBBETTS NOW TO MAKE WAR ON DREYFUS

NEW YORK, Jan. 12—Charles H. Ebbetts, president of the Brooklyn National League club, is out after the scalp of Barney Dreyfus. The chief mogul of the superfluss struck the war pond against the head of the Pittsburg baseball family in the council of the National League president, Thomas J. Lynch.

"I cannot see where Mr. Dreyfus has ground to attack my rough draft of a 1910 game schedule," said Mr. Ebbetts. "With him I am a member of the National League schedule committee. I never protested that the schedule I advanced would be changed materially by the league. I formed a rough draft only to prove to my colleagues that the league could arrange it. It rests with the committee to approve or disapprove of the completed draft.

"I know very well that Mr. Dreyfus is opposed to opening up the season in the National League. But Mr. Dreyfus should remember that at the annual meeting of the National league it was decided to extend the playing season of our circuit by fourteen additional games. Personally I announced that I believe with the majority of my colleagues that the extra call upon our resources demanded the necessary.

"With the increase in rentals, the demands for increased pay by the cops and gate of players, the advance in cantaloupes and the high cost of living generally, the baseball magnates club owners felt naturally they should protect their properties by lengthening the season.

"There is no personal motive that prompted me to draft the tentative schedule, and I believe I voiced the sentiments of my colleagues that the extra call upon our resources demanded the necessary.

OUR BEST MEN GO ABROAD TO MAKE MATCHES

If the present exodus continues for any length of time here will not be a good fighter left in the country in a month—only Jeffries and Johnson, and if for this sailing to Europe continues on like pair from the old-timers you wouldn't imagine either of them is first-class.

At least a dozen good fighters from this country either are on foreign shores now or are making for them as fast as the liners can carry them or are on the verge of sailing. It will not take long before all of the American rings will be monopolized by the good matters or newcomers trying to break into the best title society. Packy McFarland is the latest to pack his grip away. He sails to-day for England, where he hopes to get on a match with Freddie Welsh.

Langford Going, Too.

Sam Langford, the tar baby, sails in a short time for dear old London.

Eddie McGorty, the Oshkosh fighter, has been in Ireland for some time—long enough to regret it, too. After winning the first battle in decent decisive style he had a questionable decision rendered against him in his battle with Tom Langford. He is reported now and hopes to redeem himself completely. He will be met by Langford in the latter's home in the coveted bout with Tom Thomas, the pride of Great Britain in the middleweight division.

Battling Lewis logs, Harry and Willie, are other American candidates for foreign honors. Willie is in Paris and Harry is about to sail to fight him. Billy Papke, the Illinois middleweight, is said to have landed in France in fine shape for three battles he has there.

Burns Is Making Money.

Other battlers are looking toward Australia for big money. Tommy Burns has made such a big success of things there that other fighters are curious and are trying to emulate his example. Rudy Unholz has made a big hit there and is doing exceptionally well. Jimmy Britt, an American, as well as Johnny Summers, the English fighter, are on their way to Sydney to be finely within an inch of his life.

Stanley Ketchel also is making goo-goo eyes at foreign shores and Ad Wolgast is said to have accepted terms to go to Australia for three fights, although his match on Friday night with Battling Nelson may cause a shift in his plans. Abe Attell also is keeping an eye on the film.

All in all, it looks as if Jeff and Jack are going to monopolize the spotlight entirely for the remainder of the Winter and Spring.

WAGNER SIGNS CONTRACT WITH THE RED SOX

Charlie Wagner, popularly known as "Heinie," the Red Sox shortstop, sent his signed contract to the club to-day. Everybody, from President Taylor down, was pleased to get it in.

Wagner is built up and was not able to play the last part of the past season. Little Charlie French took his place, while Wagner sat in the grand stand. But the regular shortstop says he has had a good rest and will be ready at the tap of the bell for next season's work.

Speaker, Stahl, McConnell, two or three pitchers and a few more stout fellow members of the Red Sox band that are yet to be signed will be landed in short order, as there will be heard from before the month is up.

President Taylor was again at his office, no beyond the receipt of Wagner's contract there was little doing.

BOXING BOUTS

PROVIDENCE—The Standard Athletic club opened again in North Providence with Jack Nelson and Harry Stone scheduled for fifteen rounds, as the attraction. The decision was given to Nelson, but the award was not the wisest possible. Several of the spectators calling for a draw. The semi-final went to Harry Powers of New York over Joe Cusick of Providence in five rounds with Mike McNamara of Boston as referee. The curtain raiser was a fast affair, knocking out Young Andrews in the second round.

* * *

DENVER—Harry Lewis gained the decision at the conclusion of a ten-round go with Jack Blackburn of Chicago. Through the fight Baker was on the defensive and Lewis found his best leads his guard. Referee Sweppert was referee. Willie Ritchie and "Reddy" Gallagher announced Lewis the victor the crowd surged forward and climbed over the ropes and into the ring, shouting "fraud." As a spectacular fight it was the best that has been seen in this city for a long time.

* * *

SCHENECTADY, N. Y.—In one of the fiercest ring battles ever seen in this city, Young Spain of Troy and Battling Hurley of Passie pounded their way through ten rounds to a draw. It was a whirlwind fight from the start. Smith was a little wild in the first five rounds and Hurley got away with the third and fifth. Q. Spain took the opening between and got a slends of the latter of the argument in the seventh and ninth. The other rounds were even breaks.

* * *

PHILADELPHIA—Willie Lucas had a shade the better of Abe Rosen in his ten-round go at the Olympic A. C. Rosen got the cleaner blows and sent Ryan to the floor in the eighth round. Ryan got the best work at short range, landing jarring jolts to the body and face. Lucas was handed blows, but Lucas was always willing to mix matters with the gesers and was entitled to the decision.

* * *

NEW YORK—Jack Cooper of Philadelphia proved a poor substitute for Jack Fitzgerald in the main bout at Brown's gymnasium. Cooper opened Harry Smith and after making a fairly good showing for two rounds received a wallop on the jaw with a left-hand swing and went down and out.

WEE WILLIE IN BAD.

Wee Willie Keister, who was released by Willie Lewis, when he had a permanent land in the Barons winning the rag, must be a bad actor, I guess. This is the way a sporting paragrapher there handles Keister's case: "Billy Keister may not be with the Barons and he may not. For us he is may not."

GILBERT TO THE MINORS.

It is beginning to look as though Billy Gilbert, who played second base for the New Yorks when they won the world's championship in 1905, and who has been sort of an assistant manager for the St. Louis Cardinals for two years, would be assigned into the minors. Billy hasn't been claimed by any big league club.

NEW DANCES FOR 1910—Descriptive article and splendid illustrations in the SUNDAY AMERICAN.

M'FARLAND BOUND FOR OLD LONDON AND FAME

By TAD.

NEW YORK, Jan. 12—Mr. P. McFarland, accompanied by Mr. P. Kennedy, will go away from here to-day.

They are bound for dear old London, and expect to get on a heap of collection.

McFarland is very fond of titles, and is desirous of gathering in the one owned by F. Welsh of Pottsville, Pa.

"This fellow Welsh is the whole cheese on the other side, and I guess I'll have to do something the green kelly and taking a load of his long money myself," said the polished chalk usually adorned by the sporting Editor.

"I know that he can't fight, and am not going across to show Welsh what I know, but to show what I can do myself. If Welsh is the best man on the other side I'll step in and knock him out. Then I hear him at Milwaukee and threw with him a few times. I know that I can lick Welsh at his own game. I intended and still intend to get a match with Welsh, but if he will fight any twenty or forty-five pounds I'll knock him out.

"I don't want to get his title so as to get Nelson's goat, for I don't believe that Nelson could lick under my arm the author will be so sore that he'll be out $10,000 he wants to bet me $10,000.

Well, you know boxing is a business with me, and I don't bet on myself. I want the purse any way he wants. Will I do any regulation stuff? Well, I'll tell you made that ringside rules? Gee whiz! that's not right. Why, I know that Nelson insists upon it. He says that a referee who weighs 152 pounds is the right ready to fight. That weight suits him to a T, and doesn't suit every one else. I'll make 133 for anybody in the world, but not at ringside. Why, I can't get set for a clinch. According to their rules I can't get on the beam at all. I'll be heard before he goes into the ring. I'll be a beast at the scales. I'll give a bum 20 pounds and he can't get down low to work yourself down to skin and bone.

"No, Harry Gilmore will not accompany me over. He's a good fellow, but he's got to see the toga that follow his antics. Moosely, English kelly, for cost, and a lot of junk. They will all be the best sound money owner when they shall their gillies at his scenery.

"Pat and I will tour Europe after the Welsh affair, and I think we will take in and visit Ireland and all the famous spots.

"Well here go soon as a good boat starts. Yes, I'm a cinch. Do not bet your good pesos on Welsh, but I'll get Welsh myself. I'll clear a ton of jack, let alone my end. Good luck to you, Tad, and Mr. McFarland crowd. The door shy and he was talk Cronin before send all."

BASEBALL NEWS NOTES

Seventeen young pitchers will be taken to the Cleveland training camp next Spring. Chance believes that one more good pitcher will put the Cleveland team in pennant to the Windy City.

* * *

The police chief of the Windy City is lauded as saying that Chicago is the best baseball city in the country. Then how under if the Cubs' owner helped to establish such reputation?

* * *

The Cleveland team has over fifty players on its roster at present. Manager Jennings will dispose of about fifty of his recruits within the next few weeks.

* * *

There is one ball player at least who will never forget Billy Hogg. Billy was once the life of the Yankee club. He died during the recent annual session of the leagues and was buried, Clark Griffith, the manager of the Yanks, helped to follow his coffin to the grave. But, speaking of deserters, Hogg was forgotten, and it was in one of his periodic streaks that he left to go a spitter at Bill Bradley. Those who were present will never forget. You could hear the ball game ball three blocks away. Even in the grandstand Bradley's bat never seemed able to fan 4000 times, and he accordingly eventually placed him in the infield.

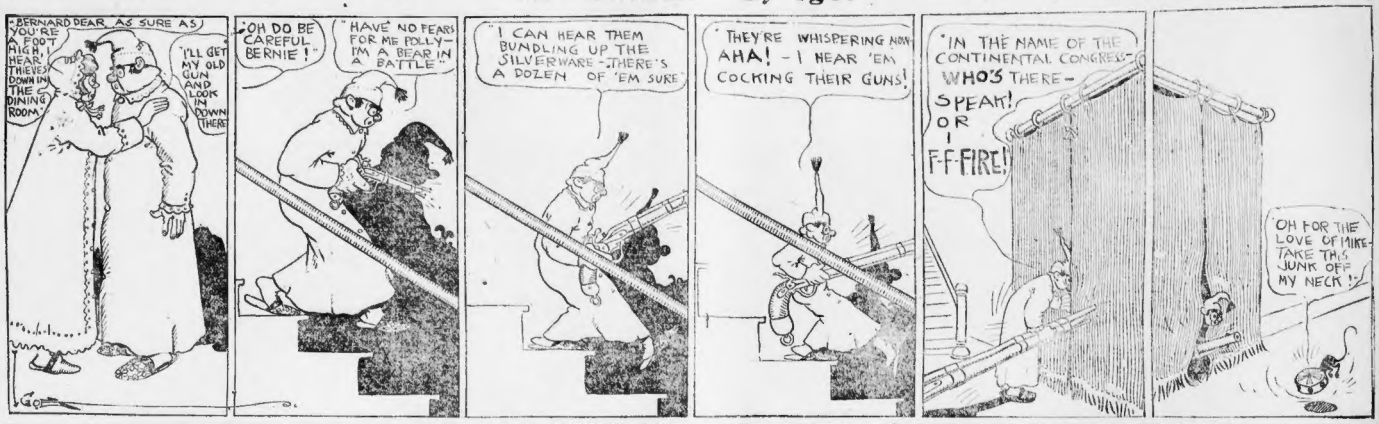
DESHLER MAKES POOR SHOWING AGAINST LOUGHREY

BOSTON AMERICAN SPORTS

SECOND AUTO SHOW IN NEW YORK IS A BIG SUCCESS

Mr. Dwindle --- By Igoe



MANY NEW AUTO MODELS AT BIG NEW YORK SHOW

By J. C. KERRISON.

NEW YORK, Jan. 12.—The more one sees of the motor show now being held in Madison Square Garden the more one is impressed with the magnitude of the motor industry and the completeness of the industry. There is not a single thing lacking in the motor vehicle itself or its allied lines. Everything is complete, and the exhibit might really be termed the "show complete," as well as the "show beautiful."

Both forms apply to the exhibit. The impressive decorative scheme and the gorgeous motor cars impress one as at no previous show. In the elegance and originality of the cars themselves the builders have certainly outstripped the masters of Europe, and America at least has nothing to fear by comparison.

Boston Men in Evidence.

There are many interesting features in the show none the least of which is the cut out chassis at the Chalmers booth where are found Messrs. Whitten and Gilmore of Boston. This is a working chassis of the regular stock car and as one can cut us to give one an intelligent idea and understanding of the workings of the motor under fire.

J. N. Willys head of the Overland and Marion outfits entertained a large party of newspaper writers at an elaborate dinner at Martin's.

Having severed connection from the Hudson, the Chalmers company is putting forth all its efforts in the production of its two models, the 30 and 40, for which in the smaller type for the coming year, on a shorter wheel base with longer rear runners, a unit power plant with the motor and clutch and gear case in one unit and three in the 30 the motor is a unit and with the clutch and gear case in pairs; it has the double drop frame and there is a new type body. Many improvements have been made in the clutch and transmission. The motor of the Chalmers 30 shows an increase in power.

Increasing the wheel base from 110 to 115 inches makes possible an improved suspension of the body with reference to the axle as well as a better body design. Previously the motor could be very suspended well between the axles, which was made possible because of the compact power plant.

In the oiling system, a more accessible location has been secured for the pumper oil pump by placing it on the left side of the motor. The double drop frame which is used for 1910 shows one drop midway of the chassis and the other immediately in front of the back axle, the idea being to use three-quarter elliptic rear springs, and so bring about a similarly low entrance to the tonneau, the object being to make the car as close to the ground as is elegant as to be handy before doing.

In speaking of the Columbia handled by Shuman in Boston, H. Markham says:

"For the fifth consecutive year the mark in Columbia is offered, the Columbia Company being so well satisfied with the success that this machine has met since it first came out in 1905 that it has continued it for 1910. A comparison between it and the product of 1905 shows an increase in size of the bore and stroke, together with the dependant increase in the power of the motor. As a protection against dirt and to eliminate noise the valve springs are completely covered, while the crank case is provided to make the front engine gear, which performs all of the independent functions of the splash oiling system. That we think well of the car is shown by the fact that the radical changes has been made in the same.

"For the first time at any national show the White gasoline car is on view. The new White is fitted by a motor of the six cylinder type and which is remarkable from the fact that there is no cam shaft, the valves being operated through the engine, the intake, exhaust and push rods being contained in the crank case. A review of the car shows it to be of the highest order of construction and finish."

Outside of this feature there is one electric, a pair-speed selective gear set with direct drive on third, shaft drive with the universal points in the propeller shaft, two-bearing crankshaft carried on annular ball bearings, automatic ignition and the motor and gear set supported by three point suspension which on two cross sections of the car frame.

Add Six Inches to Wheel.

In the steam line the White Company has added six inches to the wheel base of its 22-horse-power car. The power plant of this car is much the same as formerly, now is directly above the front axle in front of the frame of it. The engine still is of the compound vertical type.

There is much interest in this year by the Apperson line installed in Boston by W. L. Russell Company. Though the pair of horse-power stock Rabbler speed model, a majority of inquiries are for the new Apperson medium-priced creation, the six-passenger touring car with 124-inch wheel base, at $2,000, exhibited for the first time.

Other cars on view are a 4-40 seven-passenger at $5,000, and a 4-30 four-passenger at $4,250.

Harry Endicott, who has recovered entirely from his accident in the Brockton road race, is assisting Edgar Apperson, Sales Manager Strout in the exploitation of the cars.

SNOW RACES AT MATTAPAN

The Dorchester Driving Club will start the ball rolling Thursday for the second series of matinees with a good card of events over the Mattapan Speedway, which has been scraped and rolled by orders of the Metropolitan Park Commissioners.

The principal event will be the match between the pacer Go See, owned by S. S. Cushing, and the trotting gelding Jack Green, the property of Horace Gallop. This is the outcome of an address made by Gallop at the last meeting of the club in which he declared he owned the fastest mare horse of any member. To this statement Gallop made objection, even to mentioning his mother against a mare. It is certain to draw a big crowd.

HORSE NOTES WINTER CHAT

Negotiations are under way in the selling of the Turners Falls race track, consisting of 225 acres, and land of which is graded. The offer comes from a number of local owners have held the property at $12,000.

Herb O. Davis, mine host at the Auto and Driving Club House in Auburndale, is a busy boy these days in entertaining the numerous out enjoying the sleighing. Herb is a new place and is popular with all the boys.

William Sonn, of New Bedford, has sold the stallion Coldwell to Peter Duffy, of Boston, for the sum of $600. Jr. 19, to E. A. Cook, of Dayton, Ohio.

The annual banquet of the Fellsway Driving Club will be held at the Quincy House, Quincy Sq., Feb. 2. Merrifield, chairman of the committee in charge, and his associated with him Messrs. John Hurley, Edward Hurley, Fred Merrifield, Edward and H. H. Pillsbury.

The Rome, $2100, died Saturday at his home in Lexington, Mass. He was the property of Ralph Cushing. In the Charles River Speedway races he captured many events.

A new drinking fountain for man and beast has recently been placed at the junction of Commonwealth Ave. and Chestnut Hill Ave. in Allston by Mrs. H. S. Russell, in memory of her late husband, Colonel Henry S. Russell, who was a well known horseman. Ernest Cunningham, 2:04½, Hermitage, 2:04½, and Ethel Downing, 2:07½, by Hal G. Milton. Mr. Russell was born at Natick Hill, Dorchester, and died about two years ago. In horse circles his memory is ever green.

FOR SPORT FANS

IT LOOKS VERY MUCH AS IF TD have to cut Dave Deshler off my list of championship possibilities. In his fights with Brennan I was willing to believe that tackling the weight had hurt the Cambridge boy, but he had no such excuse to offer last night, and take it from me he boxed like a fourth rater. Loughrey had him so bewildered several times that Deshler didn't know whether he was fighting or running for a car. I couldn't help but think of a time not so long ago, when Deshler cornered Hot Nelson in my office and tried to coax the Dane to give him a battle for the title. Dave was tooken strong to me then, but I fail to find him anywhere on the horizon now even with a strong pair of field glasses.

WHEN THINGS DON'T GO TO SUIT me, I'm there with the hammer geared ready to do business, and I've handed Referee Dick Fleming several hard knocks when I thought he was wrong. He appears to me now to be losing eye, and if he keeps on giving decisions as accurately as he has at the last three Armory shows, I'm going to advise him to keep him in the ring corner. He had a long spell for awhile, but even the most captious can find no fault with his recent work.

FRED WRIGHT IS IN TOWN, KNOW Fred? If you don't you're missing something. Fred admits being one of the oldest boxers in the country, although he indignantly denies that he broke into the big league before Jake Morse quit the game. Fred is in the city looking for a "The Man from Home," but so better known through his long connection with Charles M. Hoyt. No man was closer to the affections of that veteran Dyer, and many are the interesting tales he tells of him. Mr. Wright says that Hoyt died with one hundred hundred cent. This was to take a hand at star baseball players, form a theatrical company of them and travel the country during the Winter months, playing baseball in the afternoon and going on "A Runaway Colt" in the evenings.

He used to bring this up about once a year," said Mr. Wright. "But we always talked him out of it. Our best argument was that baseball would make the plays get so sore in the afternoons that they would crab the night show."

WILL SOME WELL-INFORMED READ-er kindly tell me just what a "border champion" is. That's the way the brunette population of Memphis designated Sam Langford of Boston when given his Southern tour last night. I looked it up in the dictionary and the only definition which might have to fit is: "Any obstruction; anything which hinders approach." I doped it out that this might apply as Sam is one obstruction which hinders the approach of many a fighter in the direction of the box office. Still, "world's border champion" sounds pretty good, so let's give it to Sam. They won't give him a chance at any other kind of a title.

IF ALWAYS GIVES ME PLEASURE to boost a good game along and that is why I get a good deal of joy in printing anything pleasant about the Riverside Trial Club. They are a live bunch of boys and does things right, and I'm strong for any smoke talk or any other entertainment these boys pull off. Get this.

La Belle Dame Sans Merci

By JOHN KEATS

"O WHAT can ail thee, knight-at-arms,
Alone and paley loitering?
The sedge is wither'd from the lake,
And no birds sing.

"O what can ail thee, knight-at-arms,
So haggard and so woe-begone?
The squirrel's granary is full,
And the harvest's done.

"I see a lily on thy brow
With anguish moist and fever dew;
And on thy cheek a fading rose
Fast withereth too.

"I met a lady in the meads,
Full beautiful—a fairy's child,
Her hair was long, her foot was light,
And her eyes were wild.

"I made a garland for her head,
And bracelets, too, and fragrant zone;
She look'd at me as she did love,
And made sweet moan.

"I set her on my pacing steed
And nothing else saw all day long,
For sideways would she lean, and sing
A fairy's song.

"She found me roots of relish sweet,
And honey wild and manna dew,
And sure in language strange she said,
'I love thee true.'

"She took me to her elfin grot,
And there she wept and sigh'd full sore;
And there I shut her wild, wild eyes
With kisses four.

"And there she lulled me asleep,
And there I dream'd—ah! woe betide!
The latest dream I ever dream'd
On the cold hill's side.

"I saw pale kings and princes, too,
Pale warriors, death-pale were they all;
Who cried—'La Belle Dame sans Merci
Hath thee in thrall!'

"I saw their starved lips in the gloam
With horrid warning gaped wide,
And I awoke and found me here
On the cold hill's side.

"And this is why I sojourn here
Alone and paley loitering,
Though the sedge is wither'd from the lake,
And no birds sing."

A fairy's song.

The Fairies and the Snow

Poem by James I. Montague. Illustration by Nell Brinkley

"Back to earth they bore the snowflakes, bringing each one safe and sound"

By JAMES J. MONTAGUE

'Tis a solemn little fellow to his perch upon my chair,
While, outside, the starry snowflakes sifted softly through the air;
Watched them with me through the window as they settled from the sky,
Or went whirling round in eddies when the Winter wind came by;
And he told, from out a knowledge of the days of long ago—
Shared alone by little people—the strange story of the snow.

When the world was clothed with sunshine all the four long seasons through,
When the winds were always gentle, and the skies were always blue,
All day long the fairies loitered, underneath the whispering trees,
Tossing petals at the robins, making faces at the bees,
Stealing honey from the flowers, or along a dew-drop's rim,
Trooping merrily together for an early morning swim.

Then there came the first December, and the fairies found one night
All the region round about them carpeted with fleecy white.
But, alas! the fragile snowflakes had been shattered, one and all,
But upon a leaf alighted one unblemished crystal star
And lay softly, bruised and broken, everywhere they chanced to fall.
Whose perfection told the fairies how delightful snowflakes are.

Then they spread their filmy pinions, and they flittered toward the sky,
Deftly catching every snowflake as it hurried swiftly by;
Back to earth they bore their burdens, bringing each one safe and sound
And in all its magic beauty to the brown and frozen ground.
All night long they toiled together, flitting gayly to and fro,
Swarming in the velvet midnight, myriad meteors of snow.

Now, when keen winds nip their faces, and the sky grows dull and gray,
Comes a warning to the fairies that the snow is on its way,
Then they leave their cozy couches 'neath the Autumn leaves and fly
Nimbly forth to catch the snowflakes ere they tumble from the sky;
And they bear them gently—gently—to the earth, ant lay them down
On the fluffy, feathery carpet, over meadow, hill and town.

To the Sinking Sun

By FRANCIS THOMPSON

HOW graciously thou wear'st the yoke
Of use that does not fail!
The grasses, like an anchored smoke,
Ride in the bending gale;
This knoll is snowed with blosmy manna,
And fire-dropt as a seraph's mail.

Here every eve thou stretchest out
Untarnishable wing,
And marvellously bring'st about
Newly an olden thing;
Nor ever through Ille-ordered heaven
Moves largely thy grave progressing.

Here every eve thou goest down
Behind the self-same hill,
Nor ever twice alike go'st down
Behind the self-same hill;
Nor like-ways is one flame-sopped flower
Possessed with glory past its will.

Not twice alike! I am not blind,
My sight is live to see;
And yet I do complain of thy
Weary variety,
O Sun! I ask thee less or more,
Change not at all, or utterly!

O give me unprevisioned new,
Or give to change reprieve!
For new in me is olden too,
That I for sameness grieve.
O flowers! O grasses! be but once
The grass and flower of yester eve!

Wonder and change and sadness are the jet
Of change; thou yield'st mine eyes
Grief of vicissitude, but not
Its penetrant surprise.
Immutability mutable
Burthens my spirit and the skies.

O altered joy, all joyed of yore,
Plodding in unconned ways!
O grief grieved out, and yet once more
A dull new, staled amaze!
I dream and all was dreamed before,
Or dream I so? tho dreamer says.

The Manicure Lady

She Tells How the New Year Has Started Well

"THE new year is pretty well under way," said the Manicure Lady. "I have been doing fine this week. I had any number of gents in here to have their nails did, and most of them came through with the extra dough. Some of them was old and some was young, some was there with the bankroll and some wasn't, but all of them was there with the new year cheer.

"I guess it's a pretty soft world after all, George. Maybe it's because there is a lot of that fleecy ermine snow on the ground to make the lighting soft, and maybe folks is so glad to get in out of the cold that they are more liberal than they used to be in the hot weather, but in any case it has sure been coming good."

"It hasn't been coming good for me," said the Head Barber. "It has been doing nothing but going out. I had to pay the rent up home yesterday, and maybe you think the landlord wasn't there on the dot. He lives only six blocks from the house, but do you think he walked that six blocks—he didn't. He took the subway one station to be punctual.

"One of Them C. O. D. Chops."

"Then the butcher came in with a chop for our Sunday dinner, and you should have seen it. It was one of those long, lean, C. O. D. chops that the lamb must have been glad to get rid of, and it was a great night to see me sitting there at the table carving it for our dinner."

"It ain't hard to carve when you know how," said the Manicure Lady. "When you know how, the old gent says, it's just like falling off of a bridge."

"It ain't very hard to carve a chop," said the Head Barber, "but I don't like the heavy going, like ducks and geese. That's why I was glad, in a way, to see that all we had for dinner was a chop. It cost enough, at that, even if there wasn't much nourishment in it for a family."

"Things is awful high, for a fact, George," remarked the Manicure Lady.

"Wilfred is writing a musical comedy called 'The Cost of Living,' and he is on the second act now.

Some of It Just Full of Tears

"It is all full of and stuff about how hard a young and struggling couple tries to live in a great city. Some of the lines even made the old gent cry, and he ain't very soft on Wilfred these days.

"It's all going out and nothing coming in," as the barber sees it.

"One of the lines is just full of tears, I think. The frail young wife puts her arms around the pale husband's neck, and she says, 'Never mind, Gus. Some day you will sell a picture, and then we will dwell in a rose-colored cottage on Beecker street. I love you just the same, dear heart, and that alone should help.'

"Them and things don't go very strong in musical comedies," said the Head Barber. "Folks in New York has lots of time to do their crying at home, before they go to the show."

"Oh, but there's funny stuff in it, too," said the Manicure Lady. There is some cute verses like:

"'I long for all them good old days,
With longing on my brow;
You could buy a grand piano then
For what an egg costs now.'"

"That's just as sad as the rest of it," said the Head Barber, "because it's true."

The Bill Clerk Explodes

But He Finally Admits He Was Just Talking

By KENNETT HARRIS.

"JUST as I was coming around the corner, a goggle-eyed brute in an automobile nearly run me down," said the bill clerk. "I'd have given a pretty X for a good sixteen-shot rifle right then—one that would shoot those explosive bullets," he continued savagely. "I'd have plunked the whole sixteen into him."

"It was exasperating, wasn't it?" agreed the cashier. "I saw him. He was coming along at the furious rate of a mile in an hour and a half, at least, and he had the insufferable impertinence to honk at you, darn him, didn't he? Too high and mighty to ask you politely to move to one side—what? Just honked and honked as if you were a cow on the track. I gloried in your spunk, stopping right in front of him."

The Bill Clerk lectured on that auto all day.

"I wanted to show him that he didn't own the street anyway," muttered the bill clerk.

The Purse-Proud Beast

"Naturally," said the cashier. "The purse-proud beast must have paid four or five thousand dollars for that machine—dollars that he stole from somebody, no doubt, cotton on him! Did you notice the luminous look of the leather upholstery? May his face be blackened! And that long fur-lined coat! Dum-dum bullets would be too good for him. I'll bet you the cigar he was smoking didn't cost less than twenty-five cents.

"Do we ever crawl around in five-thousand-dollar touring cars, wrapped in marten fur and smoking twenty-five-cent cigars? Not we, not us! We're too darn much considerate for other fellows, that's there, haven't we? That's the only reason. That's all right," said the bill clerk, gallantly.

"Of course it's all right," said the cashier. "But it's all wrong for them. What right have they got to daunt the world the way they do. I go out at noon and get a plate of pork and beans and a cup of coffee and call it lunch. Sometimes when I'm feeling exceptionally flush, I run to a roast beef rare and mashed potatoes. I don't order canvas-back duck and turtle soup and Rhine jelly and champagne and fin the waiter with five-dollar bills.

Silver-Plated Dishes and Wine

"I ran Jay up hard on my heart and say that I never did such a thing in my life, but I can show you half a dozen down in this little town where it's quite usual. You can run them from the street in one place with silver-plated dishes before you, and crystal and china and other bottles and flowers and things. I've stood out there, many's the time, and gritted my teeth and looked around for a bridge."

"Yes, you have," said the bill clerk.

"Naturally," said the cashier. "Isn't that the proper frame of mind? And they not only eat that sort of provender, but they sit down to it in elegantly furnished clothes of expensive material and the finest kind of fine linen, and some of 'em wear scarf pins that are worth more money than you've got in the bank. Bricks! Bricks can't express a man's feelings when he sees 'em; bombs are what he wants—or sixteen-shot rifles."

"I was just talking, you know that," declared the bill clerk. "It isn't likely I'd shoot anybody."

The Poor Man's Only Chance

"No," agreed the cashier. "There's a foolish law against it. If there wasn't I question whether you'd have the nerve to shoot, and if you did you'd probably miss and get pulled yourself. It's perfectly damnable for people to be richer than we are and smarter and better looking, but we have to take it out on 'em to just talking, if we want to keep out of jail.

"The law is hard on a poor man when a poor man goes gunning for his rich brother. If it wasn't, the rich brother would message to take care of himself. Nine times out of ten, he'd keep cooler and shoot straighter than we would."

"You wait till a sixty-horse-power car bumps into you, old man, and then let's hear from you," said the bill clerk.

"Still I wouldn't shoot," asserted the cashier. "And the wealthier the owner of the car was, the more I wouldn't. If it was revenge I was after, do you know what I'd do, Johnny?"

"What?" asked the bill clerk.

"I'd buy a majority of the stock in all of the companies he was interested in and then freeze him out," answered the cashier.

And Cannon didn't call it his,
It still might serve its honest ends

QUITE A DIFFERENCE

"Did the difference ever strike you between the captain of a vessel and a wine exporter?"

"Never thought much about it. What is it?"

"The one ports his ship and other ships his port."

A MODERN MYSTERY
By CHARLES E. WALK

CHAPTER XXII.— (Continued)

"SICK to Cullimore," the interruption was voiced without heat, and Flint, sailing whimsically, continued:

"It was Cullimore and 'The Master' of 'let us call him Cantarini—who carried Miss Day to the automobile Sportwood saw, in the very room where I found you, to the very throne over her head as she run down the corridor. Kelsey must have been going some himself, or she must surely have overtaken him.

"They were all in a hurry, when it comes to that; didn't want their absence noted in town, I suppose. The plan was carefully laid beforehand. After turning her over to Higdon, they didn't pause an instant at the auto, and Cullimore was back at his post of duty, sitting before that gentleman under circumstances."

"Stick to Cullimore," Cole again admonished. His teeth were clenched, and the groan in his eyes grew more pitiless; it was maddening to allow his mind to dwell on Dorothy's probable plight.

Cantarini Was Cold-Blooded

"Well, he contends that all along he held out for Higdon's life and ransom; but Cantarini was cold-bloodedly obdurate, and for his persistence he was delegated to get you out of the way. He didn't dare appear too stubborn, either; but all at once it occurred to him that here was a chance to touch you for funds to make his getaway. He had to be quick, too, if he didn't want Cantarini to get wise to his duplicity. Also, cheerful sort of person that Cantarini."

"And if Cullimore had found me alive he would have performed the finishing process himself, I'll be bound," said Cole, "as Cullimore's graphic way of putting it."

"Very likely," Flint agreed. "You were mistaken, though, about Cullimore being the intermediary."

"You have captured him also?"

For a moment the other was silent, then—

"Not yet," he said quietly. "Of course, if Cullimore had been, your attempt to send him to me must have failed."

"Lord only knows how I hoped he wasn't. I used the word because I knew it would mean as much to you as a specific direction—had I been permitted to write one."

Flint nodded comprehendingly, and resumed his former business-like tone.

"It was Cantarini himself who hauled you away from McIver's last night. That plan was also carefully prearranged in every detail. Why he didn't finish you at once—when he had the chance—I can't——"

"I think I can tell you," Cole interrupted. "Cullimore is not alone in seeing the circle's early finish. Cantarini is surely hanging on—despairingly, for all we know—until his schemes ripen; then he means to efface himself without the least consideration for his tools. He is taking no more chances than the rest of them."

"Perhaps you're right. Just the same, you are lucky. What sort of a looking man is Cantarini?"

"Yes, a cabby. I know now that it was he."

For a while Flint considered the advisability of telling his companion about Miss Gervaise's mysterious disappearing morning, but on second thought concluded to postpone the news until the young man had more time to pull himself together. What he had to tell would only increase his hearer's anxiety; there was nothing to add to allay it.

"The motor drew up at Police Headquarters, and without further parley Flint led the way to a private room. He asked, as soon as they were seated:

"What are your plans—or have you any?"

"Find Cantarini," returned Cole, unrestlingly stern.

The gray head nodded appreciatively, the creases at the corners of the shrewd eyes deepened, the man's face seemed all at once to become a veritable network of wrinkles, as fine as threads.

"Excellent," he acquiesced, "but not specific. . . . And so a queer, constrained manner he proceeded with an apology for the cavalier way with which he had disposed of the affair at the church, at a time when every person interested was in such deep distress of mind.

"I realize now," said he, earnestly, "that it was a tragic moment for you and your friends. I did the young lady a great injustice by——"

"I know that."

"Yes, you saw a good deal that I was blind to," Flint ruefully admitted. Then, after frankly confessing his blunder and asserting a determination to compensate those who had suffered thereby, he unhesitatingly agreed to devote all his time and attention to assisting Cole in his search for the missing girl and in bringing Cantarini to justice—"if," he concluded significantly, "you are now willing to accept my aid."

TO BE CONTINUED TO-MORROW.

The Black and Gray Eyes

Cole described him: tall, broadly built, his features swarthy, large and prominent. "Nobody who has ever seen him once could ever forget his face," he supplemented, "for he carries one indelible mark. One eye is as black as jet, the other gray."

"A cabman, for instance," suggested Flint.

"Yes, a cabby. I know now that it was he."

For a while Flint considered the advisability of telling his companion about Miss Gervaise's mysterious disappearing morning, but on second thought concluded to postpone the news until the young man had more time to pull himself together. What he had to tell would only increase his hearer's anxiety; there was nothing to add to allay it.

TO-DAY'S BEST STORY

ETHEL, aged six, had gone down the village street with her new doll. It could be plainly seen that she was in dire distress. She stood still and after a close scrutiny of several men who passed she accosted one.

"Say, are you an honest man?" she demanded.

"Why, yes, I think so," was the astonished reply.

"Well, then, if you're sure you're an honest man," said the little maid, "please hold my dolly while I tie my shoe."

Crowded Society Calendar Keeps Boston Buds and Belles in Merry Whirl

By ELIZABETH ELLIOTT.

With grand opera, the various debutante dances, the dinners, teas and receptions crowding the smart-set calendar, the lads, belles and matrons are kept busy in a merry whirl and so rapidly are their smart affairs piling up that the idea of crowding them all into the brief space of time left between now and Ash Wednesday must either be, for the most part, abandoned or else they must divide interest with the innumerable other affairs. When debutantes are through with their part in the program, which will be soon, then the older members of the exclusive set will come forward and their affairs will exclude all others, but it is these affairs which will from now on begin to crowd. After this short period of rush and whirl there will be little time left for the preparations inclident to the annual flight to the South—Louis. They are, in fact, even now beginning and dates are being set. That is the one redeeming feature of the season and with a rest in the South or in Italy as a goal, they can stand the mad whirl of things as they are at present.

A large number of the season's debutantes are interested in the dinner dance which Mr. and Mrs. George Putnam are giving this evening at the Agassiz in honor of their debutante granddaughter, Miss Katherine Putnam. This is the second important affair the young girl has been honored with during her coming-out year, for her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Lowell Putnam of Beacon street, gave a large ball for her at the Somerset last month. The George Putnams have one of the largest suites at the Agassiz on Commonwealth avenue and are spending the Winter there. Mrs. William Lowell Putnam and Miss Katherine Putnam are leaving town next week and are going abroad for an indefinite stay. They will be greatly missed here during the remainder of the season. The dinner-dance to-night is therefore, in all probability, Miss Putnam's final appearance in debutante circles here during her presentation year.

A New York wedding to-day, in which Boston people are taking much interest, is that of Miss Pauline H. Boulton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William B. Boulton, to Newbold Lawrence Herries. The wedding is to be attended by Grace Church on Broadway and Tenth street. A number of invitations to the wedding have been received here and a few have gone over for the event. Miss Boulton's only attendant is Miss Marion Stevenson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard W. Stevenson, whose engagement to Henry Seabury Parker of Boston was announced some months ago. Mr. Parker is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry N. Parker of this city.

Mr. and Mrs. William Caine once Wilcox are expected in this country in the Spring. Mrs. Caine is the wife of a prominent member of Parliament in England, whom she was married some time ago. During the past year Mr. and Mrs. Caine have travelled extensively on the Continent.

Miss Helen Anderson of this city is in New York and was present at the tea which Mrs. Dudley Pulsifer Rogers gave recently to introduce her daughter, Miss Helen Rogers. Miss Anderson is an intimate friend of Mrs. and Miss Rogers and assisted them in receiving their guests. The others who received with them were Mrs. T. C. Sayre of Washington, Miss Gladys Sully, Miss Alice Duval, Mrs. W. C. Magee of New York and Mrs. George B. Nelson Lowrey of Brooklyn.

Dr. and Mrs. R. S. Wilder of this city are spending part of the season at Coronado, South California.

Mrs. Phillip Lord, a sister of Mrs. Arthur Robeson Sargent of Hobin Lea Broadhurst, has come out for a dinner at her home in New York. The dinner will be given Tuesday evening, January 13.

Mr. and Mrs. James Fuller Lord (Martha Lawson) are soon to start on a long trip around the world, visiting other places they will visit Naples, where they have arranged to meet Miss Dorothy Lawson, who has been abroad for several months now. Miss Lawson is expected to return to her home here in February. Mr. and Mrs. Lord have been quite recently in Egypt, Solmate, with Thomas W. Lawson and his family, and kept their company astute. "Dreamwold," open through the Christmas holidays. Mr. Lord came from Chicago where he is a prominent clubman.

Mr. and Mrs. Peg E. de Fefe of Boston are cruising in Southern waters on the yacht, Wild Duck. They motored up to Miami in Florida recently to spend a few days at The Brothers. Paul E. de Fefe, Jr., and Roland de Fefe are with them.

Miss Josephine Whitney, the debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Whitney of Beacon street and Cohasset, is planning a visit in New York and will go over next week. She will be entertained by her aunt, Mrs. Henry Dimock.

Miss Ethel Arnold of England, who is in New York and receiving much attention, is expected here toward the end of the month. She will be entertained in Brookline for a short visit.

Mr. and Mrs. Larz Anderson, who have begun the season in Washington, are entertaining extensively, Mrs. Brands out for a series of dinners this month.

Miss Mary Shreve Ames is entertaining a goddaughter at her Dartmouth street residence this season.

Mrs. Everett Hallock (Isabel N. Flanders) of Commonwealth avenue has been visiting her sister, Mrs. Maynard Hoyt Durfee, at her home in Brooklyn, New York, during her stay with Mrs. Durfee, Mrs. Hallock was entertained at a recital of Richard Strauss' songs, in which Miss Amy Grant of New York, who is well known here, gave a most impressive rendition of the characters, while Miss Elizabeth Hughes played the accompaniments. The presentation was made from a small stage that was erected at the end of the drawing room for the performance. A supper was served to the two hundred guests at the close of the recital.

Mrs. L. B. Schofield of Newtonville announces the engagement of her daughter, Miss Myra Hosford, to Mark G. Magunson of St. Paul, Minnesota. Mr. Magunson is a graduate of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology of the class of 1904.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert H. McClelland of Newton Centre announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Gladys Hardwick McClelland, to Richard J. McCulloch of Souris, Manitoba, Canada.

The ushers at the Copeaia play, which is to be given at Jordan Hall on the twenty-fifth under a large society patronage, are all to be Yale men, and include the following: Miss Barbara Barr, Miss Mary Copley Amory, Miss Mary Josephine Amory, Miss Rosamond Bradlee, Miss Alice Bolt, Miss Alice Sears, Miss Nina Burnham, Miss Dorothy Bull, Miss Elizabeth Gray, Miss Sally Thayer, Miss Elizabeth Porter, Miss Margaret Stackpole, Miss Olga Lingard, Miss Alice Moss, Miss Evelyn Thayer and Miss May Loring.

A Winter Song.

By A. G. BALFOUR.

HER brow is cold—her face is stern and gray
This Winter day.
She drives her children from her knees away.

The Mother Bountiful! She stands apart,
She steels her heart.
She hears alone her penury and smart.

The snowflakes are her tears that fall
On her white face;
The wild winds buffet her, and mar her grace.

Yet in her heart there is a secret bliss;
She knoweth this—
That in the future, Summer sunshine is.

Here are the crocuses, laid warm and deep,
And sound asleep.
While in her bosom she doth safely keep
The Summer's promise with a miser's care
She shieldeth there—
Promise of things unnecessarily rare.

She knows glad secrets, and accordingly
She will not die.
For she hath hope, and she doth live thereby.

The Wish of Many a Man

By KENNETT HARRIS

I'M not a literary guy, and don't pretend to be,
At Masterlinck I always shy, and James is Greek to me.
Whenever I hear Browning read I'm anxious to escape;
I'd sooner sit me down instead and read the evening pape.

I say, I'd sooner do so, yet it's mighty hard to do!
One's wife will very seldom let one read one's paper through.
She says she's been all day alone and that one need not frown—
And so on till one gives a groan and lays the paper down.

She says, "I'm foolish, I suppose, to think you ought to eat.
And not forever stick your nose into that wretched sheet.
I've known the time you'd never fail to—well! I am surprised
Here's Tuesday, and a bargain sale to-morrow advertised."

She grabs the journal, and she reads that bargain-spotted page.
Then turns and folds and never heeds my quite apparent rage.
She folds and turns and shifts about. Submissively I wait;
But won't I have my work cut out to get that paper straight!

Three, eight, two, five, nine, six, four, one, then seven and then ten
That's how the numbered pages run when I've my chance again.
It is no wonder that I frown. It fills my bitter cup.
To find that all are upside down that are not downside up.

I try to lead a Christian life? I do the best I can
Though in the press of toil and strife I'm merely mortal man.
So if I win, my spirit freed, to where all troubles cease,
I'll ask 'em just to let me read my paper through in peace.

Perfect Woman

By WILLIAM WORDSWORTH.

SHE was a phantom of delight
When first she gleamed upon my sight;
A lovely apparition, sent
To be a moment's ornament.
Her eyes as stars of twilight fair;
Like twilight's too, her dusky hair;
But all things else about her drawn
From May-time and the cheerful dawn;
A dancing shape, an image gay,
To haunt, to startle, to waylay.

I saw her upon nearer view,
A Spirit, yet a Woman, too;
Her household motions light and free,
And steps of virgin liberty;
A countenance in which did meet
Sweet records, promises as sweet;
A creature not too bright or good
For human nature's daily food;
For transient sorrows, simple wiles,
Praise, blame, love, kisses, tears and smiles.

And now I see with eye serene
The very pulse of the machine;
A being breathing thoughtful breath,
A traveller between life and death;
The reason firm, the temperate will,
Endurance, foresight, strength, and skill;
A perfect Woman, nobly planned,
To warn, to comfort, and command;
And yet a spirit still, and bright
With something of angelic light.

SIMPLY THAT

Bibson—Did you see Jones yesterday?
Gibson—He seemed to be laboring under a strange delusion.
Bibson—Indeed!
Gibson—So did Jones.

IMPOSSIBLE

"A vegetable trust could never keep its plans secret."
"Why not?"
"Because there would be sure to be a leek somewhere."

The Path of Learning

A SHORT STORY

BEFORE the session began the night class teacher was busy marking out the week's monthly reports. It had been a hard week in the "foreign room," for while the pupils were making good progress in their arithmetic their reading seemed to be getting more and more difficult for them. At times they read quite fluently, but when they were questioned it appeared that the text had little or no meaning to them. The teacher was puzzled over this problem as she footed up the columns of figures.

Finally she was aware that somebody else silently standing before her desk. Looking up, she saw big Jan Ivan walking there in a deferential manner.

"Excuse, teacher," he began again, "I must ask you wance how is dese pelegrams?"

"Telegrams?" echoed the perplexed woman. "Telegrams?"

"Sure, teacher, dese pelegrams. We cannot make out dese things. My friends, they say, 'Go ask how is dese pelegrams.'"

"Oh," answered the teacher, relieved, "you mean telegrams. Telegrams are"—

"No, teacher, excuse. Not how is dese things. I already seen dese telegrams." repeated Jan, "but how is dese pelegrams, how is dese look, how is dese Massetty?"

Their Stumbling Block.

At last she saw his meaning! For at least two weeks the class had been reading about the Pilgrim Fathers and Plymouth Rock, with no understanding! She explained the puzzle and carefully explained to them what "telegrams" were people, until a faint glimmer of understanding came into their faces. But an unrest that no teacher had felt in these polite times of peace was given utterance when Jan, the polite man, again addressed her.

"I think we more come, my friends and me," he said. "We like to learn about dese and nother as plge an' nimbers, so we can get more money where we works all the time. We learns to write, 'an that is good, too, we hear too much all the time about dese pelegrams fathers, but little more we can get more money. We come to the school maybe a little longer. Then maybe we can."

With a new low Jan sat down.

Before the teacher could respond, the door opened and a little, middle-aged, shabby woman entered, bearing the credentials of a new pupil. Without waiting for her to speak, the latter began to speak in a loud voice.

"I come to learn to read an' write by the Testament. While explained. "For now I am a woman of property. My husban', he made anywhere else in the world, which is so harmless or will effect so thorough and prompt a cure.

MOTHER'S WAY

"I notice you order lots of ice cream during the holidays."

"Yes; I like to order ice cream last home."

"Why?"

"Because it is about the only thing mother will eat her share of, and not try to save it until next day for one of the children."

Andalusian Song

By R. L. GALES

IN my own might see Thee
Flower of all delight.
Wreath a thousand gardens
Woo to me the sight.

White pinks and red roses
Thou who art not one,
The whole world containeth
But one flower for me.

White pinks and red roses
Blush in trellised bowers;
In a sealed garden
Blooms the flower of flowers.

If my eyes might see Thee,
They might then grow dim.
Baby white and rosy,
Flower of sexlessness.

TOUCH AND GO

"What does this picture "touch and go" mean?"

"It refers to the fellow that borrows money and then beats it before you have a chance to find out where he's living now."

Poetland

By JOHN A. MOROSO

A BOOK air dim where vines and trees
Commingle with a soft gray haze,
As sweet as sweetest yesterdays;
And in this lonely, sylvan, fair,
Comes softly the ghost of yesteryear
My people rhythm of song of thrush,
To kindle pain and yet to crush
The fearful sorrow and the care
That pester us the poisoned year.

TWO EVILS

"Don't you find it dangerous riding freights?" asked the philanthropist.

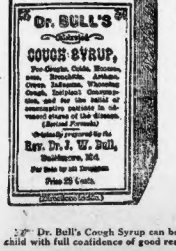
"Yes," answered the hobo, "but what can a fellow do? If he takes to the roads he is likely to be bumped by an automobile. I believe in taking the lesser of two evils."

PRICED

Grateful Father (with deep feeling)—It was a brave boy, young man. At the peril of your life you've saved my daughter. How can I ever repay you?

Brave Rescuer—Would $40 be too much, sir?

Safe and Reliable For Children's Colds



MOTHERS should be careful about colds and coughs that affect their children. It is not only dangerous but absolutely cruel to permit little ones with unsafe and untried medicine. Baby as well as the older brother and sister should be given a safe and reliable remedy. Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup is such. A record of cures prove it. There is no danger to the child from its use. Simply give it as directed and it will afford first, quick relief; second, speedy riddance of the cold and cough. Children like it because so pleasant to the taste, and mothers praise it because so prompt and effective. Homes that have this remedy handy, suffer no terrors.

Health and Happiness shared by Child and Mother.

Chicago, Ill.—Mrs. J. H. Rosenthal, 188 N. Marshfield Ave., writes: "I use Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup with my children and myself. We have used it two winter and I can say it is the best cough syrup I have ever used it for myself for my children and for the grand and speedy relief. I cannot know Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup when I was small, and my mother used it for our colds and coughs, so you see I must be satisfied with it."

MOTHERS, if you or one of the children have a cold, or cough, hoarseness, bronchitis, croup, whooping-cough, grippe, etc., first trial will convince you that Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup is before you to spend any of your money.

GOOD SALES IN REAL ESTATE ARE REPORTED

Although not up to the volume of yesterday some good sales were reported today in the real estate market.

In the South End the two and one-half story brick home and 367 square feet of land at No. 14 Trumbull street, near Newland street, have been sold by Curtis H. Waterman to James H. Beals, trustee. This property is assessed for a total of $1,400, of which $600 is on the land.

Frank A. Pond has sold to Sarah E. Robertson the frame dwelling and 4,500 square feet of land at No. 119 Norfolk avenue, near Magazine street, Roxbury, for $2,900, of which $1,000 is on the land.

In the same suburb, Joseph L. Bergman as trustee, has sold to William H. H. Emmage a lot of 5,500 square feet of land at the corner of Columbus avenue and Dearborn street, for $7,200.

In Dorchester the frame house and 5,851 square feet of land on Crescent road, between Lee and Glendower streets, have been sold by Jessie Hall to John N. Hulbert, the deed going through the New England Hospital for Women and Children. The assessment is placed at a valuation of $5,100, of which $1,800 is on the land.

Henry B. Stratton has sold to Charlie H. Barnes et al. the two brick apartment houses and 5,820 square feet of land at Nos. 30-32 Hobbs street, near Washington street, Roxbury. This property is taxed on a total valuation of $8,900, of which $1,600 is on the land.

The deeds have passed at the Suffolk registry, Dedham, covering the sale of the property on the corner of North Main and Warren streets, Medfield, by Mary Ann Ellis, Lucy H. Holey and Sadie A. Ellis, the latter a single woman, to the first two grantors and a half house, with about 33,000 square feet of land, having a total assessment of $3,000. The new owner will erect a modern business block, including a store and a large hall, on Main and Warren streets, and remove the present frame structure to the rear of the land on Warren street. It is also stated that upon completion of the new structure the post office may be removed to the location.

FUND AIDED BY BOSTON WOMAN

FRANKLIN, N. H., Jan. 12—The addition of $40,000 to the endowment fund of Proctor Academy at Andover has been accomplished. It was made possible chiefly through the earnest work in behalf of the school by President-Emeritus Charles W. Eliot of Harvard.

The fund was completed by a Boston woman, whose name is not made public. She raised $11,000 from the parishioners of the Arlington Street Church of Boston. This secures a conditional $15,000 from Mrs. Hackley of Tarrytown, N. Y., for scholarships, making the general endowment fund for the school in all $60,000, and the Hackley scholarship fund $25,000, $85,000 all.

POTTER PROMOTED TO PINCHOT'S PLACE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12—A. F. Potter, cattle man of Arizona, has been appointed chief forester for the United States in place of Gifford Pinchot. Mr. Potter, who has heretofore been an associate forester, having charge of the division of grazing, comes into a position by which he has direct charge of nearly 200,000,000 acres of Government forest land out of the total area of nearly $10,000,000 a year.

Mr. Potter was born in the Sacramento valley of California at a date not definitely known by his associates.

FIRST MEETING OF SCHOOL ASSOCIATION

At the first public meeting of the School Voters' League this afternoon, at Jacob Sleeper Hall, Dr. Jane E. Robbins, secretary of the Public Education Association of New York, spoke on "What Can Women Do for the Public Schools?" Dr. Hanford Henderson, author of "Education and the Larger Life," spoke on "Democracy in the Schools." Professor Clifton H. Johnson discussed "What Schools Might Do." The league is organized into districts, and Charles C. Ames is president, Mrs. Richard W. Hale is secretary, Mrs. Stanley McCormick is treasurer.

STARVING MAN WRECKS HOTEL

NEW YORK, Jan. 12—Henry Westerburg, a carpenter long out of a job and emaciated for want of food, hurled two big bricks through a plate glass window of the dining room at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel. The crash of glass threw the diners into confusion.

"I was hungry," he added, "and as I stood and looked at everything to eat and drink me arm came up and I threw the chiles. I don't know why I did it."

FIREMEN RESCUED IN BIG STORE FIRE

CHICAGO, Jan. 12—An explosion today wrecked the department store of Johnson Brothers on Milwaukee avenue, and started a fire which destroyed the structure and stock. The damage is about $200,000. Seven firemen, who were trapped in the rear of the building, were taken out by fellow workers without their own lives, narrowly escaping death.

SIX DEAD, SIX HURT IN MINE EXPLOSION

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Jan. 12—Six are dead and six other workmen suffering from frightful burns as the result of an explosion of gas during the night in the deep shaft of the Nottingham colliery of the Lehigh and Wilkesbarre Coal Company at Plymouth.

SPLENDID SONG HIT FREE—The best solo from the comic opera, "Yankee Mandarin," will be given with the SUNDAY AMERICAN.

TO-DAY'S STOCK MARKETS; STATE ST. NEWS FOR INVESTORS

This is THE DAY. Governors of the New York Stock Exchange will decide this afternoon what punishment to inflict on those members of the board concerned in the Rock Island scandal of December 27.

$ $ $

If the Exchange fails to take drastic action the Legislature at Albany will attend to the matter immediately.

$ $ $

This matter has become of extreme importance not so much because the men involved are important as because the integrity of the Exchange is in question.

$ $ $

A compromise will mean that the Exchange is afraid of one man. If the Stock Exchange is afraid of one operator, it is good evidence that it is afraid of the Stock Exchange. That is what's the matter with the stock market just now.

$ $ $

This conclusion is forced because exhaustive investigation in every other direction fails to disclose anything wrong with business conditions, with the money market or with conditions. There has been some liquidation by bankers who don't possess it will be to lead the fight on any grand bear attack, but they are the ones to let the decision of the Exchange Governors, which should be announced on Thursday morning.

$ $ $

There is a show of confidence that seems to be sincere. Legislation proposed by President Taft is an argument for higher prices of all stocks. Money on call advances in price as it is absorbed in a business boom.

A Winter crop of at least 100,000,000 bushels greater than last year is assured for 1910 and a cotton crop 5,000,000 bales larger.

$ $ $

Some of the selling of stocks has looked ominous. There is no doubt that thousands of margin accounts were liquidated in the last two weeks on the urgent advice of brokers fearful of the market slant over the Rock Island affair. Some of the professionals have worked themselves into such a state of nerves that they have been selling thousands of shares on nothing except the chance the full volume of trading off the tickers.

$ $ $

An increase of the Steel dividend is doubtful, as no member of the Finance Committee will commit himself to an opinion. Several months ago the public was practically assured of an increased dividend in January, as well as in June or October.

It develops that the Steel Trust is planning the expenditure of $40,000,000 for a model city near Birmingham to be named Corey. In honor of the president of the trust. It is proposed to spend the entire $40,000,000 in two years. The city of Corey will provide for a population of 100,000. It will be built two miles from the present city of Birmingham, with which it will be connected by electric cars. The trust has set aside a large tract of land to be sold to employes of the trust at actual cost. The Steel Trust's bank will advance 75 per cent. of the price to employes taking the land, and the lot owner will be compelled to expend $1,500 at least on a house, of which 75 per cent. will be advanced by the trust. Ground will be broken for the new city on March 1.

Steel is generally regarded as the backbone of the market, and the entire list will follow it up or down. The new pool is trying to excite liquidation in Steel through fear of the decision soon to be rendered in the American Tobacco case. This decision cannot apply even indirectly to the Steel trust, because in both the Tobacco case and the Standard Oil case the lower courts have based their decision on plain proof of oppression.

$ $ $

President Taft's message to Congress makes it clear that the Steel Trust is going to be modested, for he says that it is not unlawful to secure a monopoly through natural advantages, opportunities, and adds that it is the purpose of the executive to investigate through the Bureau of Corporations all Industrial corporations "with regard of which there may be reasonable ground for suspicion that they have been organized for a purpose or have developed business on a plan which is a violation of the anti-trust law."

Lake Copper directors recently sold 1,000 additional shares of stock at $27.50 per share through Paine, Webber & Co. The company has $275,000 cash in the treasury for 10,000 shares. Lake Copper has risen $10 per share so far this week.

ADVANCES BY COPPER STOCKS

STATE STREET, Jan. 12—Certain of the copper shares lolled this forenoon, and it spread to some stocks on the Curb. Lake Copper stock again attracted attention at the opening and recorded a three-point advance to 93, with some subsequent reaction. Efforts were made to stop the excessive speculation in Lake stock, as it detracted from other meritorious mines.

The result was that such stocks as Hancock, La Salle and North Lake were taken in hand and substantial advances occurred. The first named rose 2 points, to 56; La Salle 1¼ points, to 18¾, and the last named 2¾ points, to 11⅝. Superior Copper also rose fifty points to 66¼.

North Butte was very quiet and steady, while U. S. Coal & Oil rose a point to 20. Although there are no organized pools many of these stocks mentioned are being taken in sympathy. There is a good following made at the Lake property. Analgamated was under at 87¼ and 87⅝. Activity is entirely in the Lake Superior mines.

On the curb Indiana shot up 5¼ points to 16, and South Lake 1⅝ points to 14⅞. Oneco was also very active and rose to 8¾, or nearly double that of the first of the week.

ROCK ISLAND FALLS TO 44

NEW YORK, Jan. 12.—Stocks were steady at the opening in Wall street, with Steel, Union Pacific and Reading showing support. Rock Island moved to a new low level for the year, touching 44. Trading was on a relatively light scale and without distinct trend.

The entire street devoted most of its attention to the possible action of the Stock Exchange governors in connection with the Rock Island scandal. The governors were reported in angry mood on account of criticism that followed the advance of Rock Island from 50 to 81, and as a result they were reported ready to take drastic action. The decision in this matter was not expected until to-morrow morning, but early to-day the report gained currency that some announcement might be made before the close of the market to-day.

Interborough-Metropolitan stocks showed strength, and also recorded fractional advances. London was generally firm, with African mining stocks the feature of trading. On the curb market trading was dull.

DR. JAMES HANNAY DEAD.

ST. JOHN, N. B., Jan. 12.—Dr. James Hannay, eminent historian and one of Canada's foremost journalists, was found dead in bed to-day. He was born April 22, 1842.

Our New Building

on Court Street occupies one of the most convenient banking locations in this city and is equally accessible for both local and out-of-town depositors.

More than 20,000 customers from all over New England find in this office and our Temple Place branch banking facilities superior to those afforded by any other institution in Boston.

Interest bearing accounts subject to check may be opened, and money deposited or check cashed, at either office.

PLAN IGLOOS AT BIG CARNIVAL

A notable list of patronesses is announced for the Winter carnival of country clubs to be held on the night of January 21 at the Twin-Elms Spring estate Lexington. The Boston patronesses include Mrs. Elsen S. Draper, Mrs. Bryce J. Allen, Mrs. Robert S. Bradley, Mrs. Harcourt Amory, Mrs. Curtis Guild, Jr., Mrs. Eben D. Jordan, Mrs. Robert W. Morse, Mrs. Robert Treat Paine second, Mrs. Phillip J. Salisonstall, Mrs. Richard S. Sewall, Mrs. Parker Warren, Mrs. Samuel J. Mixter, Mrs. Thomas Russell and others.

Dr. Andrews F. Christian and Horace Fletcher, the famous ski jumpers and snow-shoe experts, have just visited the new ski course and toboggan chute at the carnival grounds. The two Norwegians say the course and chute are splendid. The proceeds of the carnival are to go to the Boston Floating Hospital. Mesdames Alice Bull, Brookline, Winchester, Oakley, Belmont Country Clubs and the Appalachian and Boston Athletic Associations are serving on the carnival committees.

Among the carnival features will be dancing on the ice, snow-shoeing, hockey games, coasting, skiing, tobogganing, bonfires, snow igloos, fireworks, Japanese lantern illumination and elaborate decorations. Fireworks will close the display.

It is not a question of his life, the interests of Napoleon's family, but the interests of the whole world. Napoleon's refusal to learn auto gives a chance to some other man to learn auto. Napoleon's refusal to learn auto saves, as most of his enemies are satisfied, the expense of his funeral. Napoleon's refusal gives a chance to learn a trade, but a sure chance to learn auto. Napoleon's refusal to learn auto and chauffeur is the best thing the Navy has done for Napoleon. Napoleon's refusal to learn auto, you, the Boxborough, may fail to realize your opportunity to learn auto and chauffeur. The Navy Department doesn't say any young man should refuse to learn auto and chauffeur, but it is not compelling and persuasive, or will you talk to your self and tell you to learn auto and chauffeur and then you will be glad to tell everything you know about auto and chauffeur. Don't say what is time to learn. Should you decide not to learn auto and chauffeur, you will be sorry.

FITZGERALD'S ELECTION

A Vote of Confidence, but Not of Vindication—Promises That Must Be Kept for the Immediate Development of Boston.

The American people BURY ALL DIFFERENCES at the polls. The day after election men who have in bitterness lined up with one candidate or another forgive and forget, bow to the will of the popular majority and stand LOYALLY behind the successful candidates.

John F. Fitzgerald's triumph at the polls yesterday should leave no permanent bitterness. The most vindictive and unscrupulous campaign ever waged in any American city may leave some soreness, but it should not be lasting.

There should not be any Fitzgerald men or Storrow men to-day, to-morrow nor in the days to come. All citizens should stand behind the successful candidate and help toward the betterment of the city.

The VOTE OF CONFIDENCE in Fitzgerald came LARGELY from Republicans. The Republican Hibbard vote seems to have gone almost entirely to him. Clearly the Republicans like Fitzgerald and Fitzgeraldism.

Fitzgerald should not mistake the election of yesterday for a VINDICATION. His vindication will come four years hence when he has served out his term as Mayor.

The voters have taken Fitzgerald at his own valuation. They will STAND WITH HIM in every move that he makes for honest and decent government and they will be AGAINST HIM at the first sign of any return to those old methods that brought about the shocking revelations of the Finance Commission.

His triumph is largely personal. His reward should be in giving to the city of Boston THE BEST MAYOR we have ever had.

Fitzgerald was his own campaign manager, his own chief speaker, his own great organizer, and whatever there was of the outward and visible signs of the Fitzgerald campaign BEGAN AND ENDED with him.

When Fitzgerald on the stump spoke of a LARGER AND BETTER Boston and outlined his plans therefor he was listened to with respectful attention. When he spoke night after night of Boston's "subsidized press" he uttered statements that have no foundation in fact.

Nowhere are the newspapers freer than in Boston.

It was an insult to the intelligence of his hearers to say that the American, the Globe, the Transcript and the Post are controlled by any politician or set of politicians.

Perhaps these lapses may be excused because of the terrific excitement he was laboring under.

The IMPORTANT THING, SO FAR AS FITZGERALD IS CONCERNED, IS THAT HE SHALL NOW KEEP FAITH WITH THE PEOPLE OF BOSTON, AND FULFILL HIS PROMISES.

During his campaign he laid out what he described as "wonderful, constructive policies" to make Boston one of the greatest cities in the United States.

If only ONE-TENTH OF THESE PROMISES ARE CARRIED OUT FITZGERALD WILL DESERVE WELL of the people, and they will unhesitatingly give him the vindication at the end of his term that he so much desires.

But if he falters in the least, INSTEAD OF SUPPORT he will have the UNITED OPPOSITION of all believers in good government and progress.

Fitzgerald's destiny is in his own keeping. He holds the immediate future of Boston in his hands.

EVERY MERITORIOUS ACT SHOULD AND WILL RECEIVE THE ENDORSEMENT OF THE NEWSPAPERS AND THE PEOPLE.

Under his new administration Fitzgerald MUST KEEP CLEAR of the men who entangled him during his previous term in office—the men who profited by "split contracts," profited by the sale of law and who bartered away the people's rights.

The Mayor-elect has an UNUSUAL OPPORTUNITY. It is to be hoped that he will realize that fully, and conduct his office in such a way as to give complete satisfaction TO ALL THE PEOPLE.

The City Council, at first glance, seems to be excellent. The Curley-Timilty-Giblin combine was smashed to pieces. ONLY THE UNSPEAKABLE CURLEY survives. And his power for evil in the Council is minimized.

James J. Storrow has earned the right to the title of BOSTON'S MOST USEFUL CITIZEN. New in political life, unskilled in the ways of politicians, unused to the rough and tumble of political meetings, he led a brilliant fight against Fitzgerald and comes out of the battle unharmed and unashamed.

Of spotless reputation, none of the mud that was thrown at him reached his person. Every phase of his life and his character, as it was unfolded by his opponents, showed him to be of unreproachable character and deserving of the highest consideration in every way.

There are VICTORIES EVEN IN DEFEAT. Mr. Storrow performed a great civic duty and in such a way that he will always be gratefully remembered. His past is all that could be desired. His present might be the envy of any man. His future is full of promise. "The stone which the builders refused" may in time "become the head stone of the corner."

The American CONGRATULATES MR. STORROW on the splendid way in which he conducted his campaign and upon the fight he put up against tremendous odds. A man with a rapier is no match for those skilled with broadsword and battle-axe.

Congratulations to Curtis Guild, whose unceasing work for good government will never be forgotten.

Congratulations to Michael C. O'Neill, a fine type of the highest citizenship.

Congratulations to Norman White, the young Hotspur of Brookline, DEFENDER OF THE RIGHT!

Congratulations to Congressman John A. Keliher, who finely demonstrated to the satisfaction of everybody that free speech in Boston cannot be suppressed by acts of rowdyism.

And finally, congratulations to Major Patrick J. O'Keefe. He has "the pen of a ready writer." More power to his strong right hand!

EDITORIAL POINTS

New York is a place where anything may happen. One man is arrested for lugging a balloon through the streets and another for taking a boy out for a walk, the boy having bare legs and therefore looking cold. A purple elephant wouldn't stir Broadway for more than a few minutes.

The University of Copenhagen thinks of annulling the degree granted to it by Dr. Cook, the well-known explorer. It seems that the heads of the university are beginning to suspect that the recipient of their degree talked more than he explored. But learned men never do anything in a hurry.

The latest news from Africa is to the effect that the white rhinoceros has eluded the great hunter, and is now secure in the heart of the jungle, laughing in its sleeve or whatever corresponds to a sleeve. We had imagined that all rhinoceroses turned white on catching a glimpse of the hunter.

RIGHT THINKING

Especially Written for the American

By ELBERT HUBBARD

SUCCESS is in the blood. There are men whom Fate can never keep down—they march jauntily forward and rise by divine right the best of everything that earth affords.

But their success is not attained by the Samuel Smiles-Connecticut policy. They do not lie in wait, nor scheme, nor fawn, nor seek to adapt their sails to catch the breeze of popular favor. Still, they are ever alert and alive to any good that may come their way, and when it comes they simply appropriate it, and, carrying out, move steadily on.

Good health! Whenever you go out of doors draw the chin in, carry the crown of the head high and fill the lungs to the utmost; drink in the sunshine; greet your friends with a smile, and put soul into every hand-clasp.

Do not fear being misunderstood, and never waste a minute thinking about your enemies. Try to fix firmly in your own mind what you would like to do, and then without violence of direction you will move straight to the goal.

Fear is the rock on which we split, and hate is the shoal on which many a bark is stranded. When we are fearful, the judgment is as unreliable as the compass of a ship whose hold is full of iron ore; when we hate, we have unshipped the rudder, and if we stop to meditate on what the gossips say, we have allowed a hawser to befoul the screw.

Keep your mind on the great and splendid things you would like to do, and then as the days go gliding by, you will find yourself unconsciously seizing upon the opportunities that are required for the fulfillment of your desire, just as the coral insect takes from the running tide the elements that it needs. Picture in your mind the able, earnest, useful person you desire to be, and the thought you hold is hourly transforming you into that particular individual.

Thought is supreme, and to think is often better than to do.

Preserve a right mental attitude—the attitude of courage, frankness and good cheer.

Darwin and Spencer have told us that this is the method of creation. Each animal has evolved the parts it needed and desired. The horse is fleet because he wishes to be; the bird flies because it desires to; the duck has a web foot because it wants to swim. All things come through desire, and every sincere prayer is answered.

We become like that on which our hearts are fixed.

Many people know this, but they do not know it thoroughly enough so that it shapes their lives. We want friends, so we scheme and chase across lots after strong people and lie in wait for good folks—or alleged good folks—hoping to attach ourselves to them.

The only way to secure friends is to be one.

And before you are fit for friendship you must be able to do without it. That is to say, you must have sufficient self-reliance to take care of yourself, and then out of the surplus of your energy you can do for others.

The man who craves friendship—yet desires self-centred spirit will never lack for friends.

If you would have friendship, seek solitude instead of society. BEN. SWEETSER

Sweet bottle in the sunshine, sit—ous, the silent night, under the stars say yourself again and yet again, "I am a part of all my eyes behold!"

And the feeling will surely come to you that your are no mere interloper between earth and sky; but that you are a necessary particle of the whole. No harm can come to you that does not come to all, and if you shall go down it can only be amid a wreck of worlds.

Thus by laying hold on the forces of the universe you are strong with them. And when you realize this all else is easy, for in your arteries course red corpuscles, and in your heart there is the will to do and be.

Carry your chin in and the crown of your head high.

We are gods in the chrysalis.

It is generally conceded that the Boston American has a greater circulation than all the other Boston evening papers combined, and that it is as strong in Boston in the evening field as, for example, a paper of the combined strength of the Evening Journal and Evening World would be in New York city, or the Evening American and Evening News in Chicago.—Advertisers' Magazine.

SAY FERD, WE'VE ONLY ENOUGH DOUGH FOR SINGLE FARES. OF COURSE, WHERE-FERD'LL BE AT THE AFFAIR, WE CAN BANK ON A RIDE HOME IN HIS MACHINE, SO WE WONT NEED TO BORROW ANYTHING.
WE'D BETTER BE GETTING A GAIT ON. WE'RE TAKING THE 5:20 EXPRESS AREN'T WE?
1
AH-MISS MILLIONBUCKS-GOOD EVENING, WHAT? HASNT LORD PERRINSON COME YET?
COME RIGHT IN BOYS. NO- LORD PERRINSON SENT US A TELEGRAM HE COULDN'T COME.
2
MY! BUT IT'S A WILD NIGHT!
I O'CLOCK! WELL — I SUPPOSE WE'D BETTER BE GETTING TO THE STATION. THE LAST TRAIN GOES AT 1:30 AND IT WOULDN'T BE VERY CONVENIENT FOR US IF WE MISSED IT.
3
NOW WHAT IN THUNDER ARE WE GOING TO DO? WE'LL HAVE TO SPEND THE NIGHT AT THE STATION THAT'S SURE. PERHAPS SOMETHING MAY TURN UP IN THE MORNING. WE MIGHT GET A RIDE BACK ON THE FREIGHT OR A MILK WAGON.
WONDER IF THEY DON'T ASK US TO STAY ALL NIGHT.
4
4 A.M.
DOESN'T LOOM MUCH AS IF WE'RE GOING TO BREAK ANY RECORDS GETTING TO THE STORE TO-MORROW.
ANOTHER HALF DAY FINE AND IT WONT BE MUCH USE FOR US TO COLLECT OUR NEXT WEEKS SALARY.
5
WHY BOYS — HAVE YOU BEEN HERE ALL NIGHT? LOST YOUR TICKETS? WELL THAT TOO BAD. GOOD THING WE DECIDED ON GOING IN ON THE EARLY TRAIN. AS YOU CAN USE OUR FAMILY TRIP BOOK.
ER- YES MISS MILLIONBUCKS, TO BE CANDID, WE MUST HAVE LOST OUR TICKETS WHILE COMING TO THE STATION LAST NIGHT.
